County Option Prohibition Bill Has Good Chance

Will Be Pushed to Front in Case Jenks Acts Meet Defeat—Contains All Penalties of Federal Law, Including New Jones Law—Friends Consider Its Chances Good.

Albany, N. Y., March 23 (AP).—A county option prohibition enforcement measure into which has been written the terms of the Jones Law recently enacted by Congress has been tossed into New York state's legislative hopper.

The bill, introduced in the Senate yesterday, provides for enforcement in counties only after approval by referendum in the county. It was drafted to include all the penalties of the National Prohibition Act incorporated into the Federal Law since its inception.

It was understood on Capitol Hill tonight that this measure would be held in reserve by majority leaders, to be pushed to the front in case the Jenks state enforcement acts meet defeat. The bill was submitted to the Upper House under the name of Senator B. Roger Wales, of Broome, a Republican.

Chances Considered Good.

Governor Roosevelt was understood to be giving serious attention to the question of the constitutionality of a county option law. Friends of prohibition thought the measure had a good chance of passing in the Senate, and a slightly more than even chance of getting over the hurdles in the Assembly.

Should it be passed, Governor Roosevelt would be confronted with the necessity of a decision on a question which has not reached the executive office in bill form since the Mullan-Gage Act, which was repealed six years ago.

Possibility of passage of the Jenks enforcement bills, meanwhile, seemed to have diminished within the last few days. At least two assemblymen counted on by dry leaders at a showdown vote have indicated their opposition to the measure and another has been called out of Albany for the balance of the session by personal affairs. Their votes were admittedly needed to pass the measure.

Outstanding Features of New Bill.

Enforceable within the accepting county, by county, city or state peace officers.

Gives right to direct an officer of a county having no local option to arrest a person for another county having such option, for violation in the "enforcement" county.

"All acts of omissions prohibited or declared unlawful by the national prohibition act" are declared unlawful "when committed within a county adopting the provisions of this act."

All violations of this act in such a county subject to penalties prescribed in the national act.

Referendum Provisions.

Method of holding referendum: "Qualified voters of a county to the number of at least five per centum of the votes cast in such county for governor at the preceding general election at which a governor was elected, upon making a verified petition, may require that there be submitted to the qualified voters of such a county at the general election in November, 1929, or at the general election held in any fourth year thereafter" the question of local option law adoption.

Inquest Into Death of Child

Coroner W. N. Conner was called to Saugerties this morning to hold an inquest into the death of Helen O'Bryon, aged four years, who died from injuries to her head and body caused by being struck by an automobile. The child was hit near her home about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, on the Saugerties-Palenville highway, about a mile and a half from Saugerties. Chief of Police Richter of Saugerties is investigating as to who ran the automobile at the time of the accident. It is said it was a car with a New Jersey license plate. This morning Doctors Krom and Gifford made an autopsy.

FRESH HOSTILITIES BREAK OUT IN CHINA

Tokyo, March 23 (AP).—Japanese press dispatches from Nanking say it was learned reliably there, although not confirmed, that hostilities had broken out between the Nanking government forces and those of the Wuhan clique, part of the Kwangsi armies being included with the latter. Fighting occurred at Hwangmei on the Hupeh-Anwheir border.

Attended G. E. Convention.

Robert J. Harder and members of the sales force of Harder's Electrical Store attended a General Electric convention held in Albany Friday. The remarkable value of the new all-steel refrigerator was discussed. The production of G. E. refrigerators is now going forward at the rate of three a minute. It was announced that with over a quarter of a million of these refrigerators now in American homes, owners have not spent a penny for service. The new all-steel refrigerator and all other models are on display at Harder's Electrical Store.

Schooner Sunk, Crew in Irons

U. S. Coastguard Cutters Shell Suspected British Rum-Runner When Her Master Refuses to Submit to Search After Previous Warning.

New Orleans, March 23 (AP).—The coastguard cutters Dexter and Walcott plowed up the swollen Mississippi to New Orleans today bringing in irons the crew of the British schooner Imalone, including one dead member, the victim of a gun battle at sea off the Louisiana coast, after 24 hours' fight.

The Imalone was shelled and sent to the bottom with a suspected cargo of contraband when her unidentified master refused to submit to search on being overhauled by the Coast Guard boat.

The elusive craft, which Coast Guardsmen said carried on successful liquor smuggling operations for three years off the coast of New England, was sunk near "sixty deep" off March Island.

Government officials here and Admiral F. C. Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard in Washington, said reports at hand indicated that the guns were fired within the jurisdiction of the United States.

"The Imalone ran up against the Coast Guard once too often," Admiral Billard said.

Radio reports from Coast Guard patrol boats concentrating on rum ships in the Atchafalya section to Lieutenant Commander A. H. Bixby, Dry Squadron Commander at Pascagoula, Miss., stated that everything possible was done to avoid firing on the Imalone.

Arrest of Suspects Ordered.

Orders were issued to the cutters' masters to arrest all craft within the limits suspected of engaging in smuggling operations. The guardships Dallas, Forward and Dexter were ordered to converge on the section as soon as Warrant Officer Frank Paul, commander of the Walcott, first radioed that the Imalone was sighted Thursday.

These reports said the master of the rum schooner defied an ultimatum of the commander of the Dexter to heave to and submit to search when sighted again. Thereupon the Dexter issued final warning of "I'll have to sink you then. Get your men into the boats before we fire."

The schooner still resisted and the government boat fired.

Suspected Rum Crew Rescued.

The suspected rum crew, quickly took to boats and all were picked up by the Dexter and Walcott, the latter of which had sped to the scene.

The body of a negro seaman, who drowned in the flight to the boats, was recovered and placed on the Walcott.

A gunner on the Walcott received a broken arm in the recoil of his gun when the Walcott encountered the Imalone the day before and fired a shot into the rigging of the craft when resistance was offered. The hunted ship then escaped.

Damage Mounts In Southern Storms

Tornadoes, Hail Storms, High Winds and Heavy Rains Add to Heavy Toll from Floods in Three Southern States.

Atlanta, Ga., March 23 (AP).—Already sorely burdened with the aftermath of last week's floods the south today saw a mounting toll of damage left in the wake of yesterday's series of tornadoes, hail storms, high winds and heavy rains, which descended on scattered communities extending from Louisiana to North Carolina.

Seven persons lost their lives in tornadoes and storms in three states, scores of others were injured. The property damage has not been estimated. Trapped in a church used as a school at Merrellton, Ala., five Negro children were killed and eight others injured; a boy was killed at Small Creek, N. C., and a farmer was killed by lightning at Alpharetta, Ga.

At Alexandria, La., alone property damage was estimated at $100,000.

Much damage was done within a 10-mile radius of Charlotte, N. C., and Pell City, Ala., was drenched by a cloudburst.

Wilson, N. C., Chattsworth and Costanaula, Ga., and Maxwellborn, Ala., also suffered damage in wind storms, while at Jackson, Miss., Pearl River and Town Creek were turned into raging torrents by a rain-storm.

Relief and Rehabilitation Work.

Meanwhile there was no letup in the relief and rehabilitation programs under way for the 23,000 homeless flood victims in Alabama, Georgia and Florida. A government boat yesterday carried to safety a large number of refugees south of Selma.

Clear weather was in sight today following an added 2.58 inches of rain which yesterday fell in the upper Chattahoochee watershed in Alabama and Georgia.

The Mississippi river was falling at Cairo and high water conditions were rapidly being relieved by a falling stage at Hickman, Ky. General rains throughout the mid-south today found tributaries spread over wide areas of lowlands.

The river at Memphis continued its steady rise, already more than five feet above flood stage. The crest prediction, 49.8 feet of water, by Monday or Tuesday remained unchanged. The present amount of water in sight was several feet below what government engineers considerd the point of serious danger.

Foch's Funeral Plans Incomplete

France Governed in Such a Ceremony by Law, Regulation or Precedent—President to Defy Precedent and Ride in Funeral Cortege.

Paris, March 23 (AP).—President Doumergue, in defiance of the precedent which decrees that the chief of a state may not attend the funeral of a commander, will ride in the funeral cortege of Marshal Foch Tuesday, the council of ministers decided today.

France continued its preparations today to make the funeral of Marshal Foch, who twice saved it from despoilation by an invader, the most impressive rite of modern time.

Meanwhile the body of the modest old soldier, about whom in death so much ceremony—and simple unaffected grief—is being centered, lay sealed in its coffin in a room at his mansion on the Rue de Grenelle.

It will remain there, accessible for a while to public homage, until tomorrow morning, when quietly and unostentatiously it will be taken to repose for a few days beside the tomb of the unknown soldier beneath the Arc de Triomphe.

Funeral Plans Nearly Complete.

The funeral plans today were nearly complete. It was planned to submit them to a cabinet meeting in order to obtain official sanction for this. There remained, however, much detail to be filled in—for in such ceremonies France is ruled by the law or regulation and precedent, and there is so much that is unprecedented in the present occasion that the committee's task has been exceptionally heavy.

For instance it was still undecided today just what place beneath the dome in the Invalides the Marshal's body was to occupy. It probably will be placed temporarily in a crypt beside that of Marchal Marie Emile Fayolle, in whose funeral Marshal Foch himself walked only last August.

Final Resting Place.

It was proposed that the final resting place be in one of the six chapels surrounding the sarcophagus of Napoleon. The other five of these six crypts are occupied by the monuments of the Vicomte De Turenne, Marshal De Vauban, the bodies of Napoleon's two brothers Jerome and Joseph, and the body of Rouget De Lisle, composer of the Marsellaise. Beside this last is an urn containing the heart of De La Tour Dauvergne, "the first Grenadier of France."

The body of Foch will remain at the Arc De Triomphe from Sunday morning until Monday night a period in which hundreds of thousands of persons are expected to view it. Monday night it will be taken without any ceremony to the Cathedral of Notre Dame to await the solemn requiem Mass which will usher in the national funeral on Tuesday. The procession from Notre Dame to the Des Invalides will follow the Mass.

Washington, March 23 (AP).—Secretary Wilbur said today that Gov. Farrington of Hawaii would retire from office on June 1.

Hoover Will Obey Law Although He Doesn't Like It

Mandatory Upon Him to Issue Proclamation Establishing "National Origins" as Basis of Immigration Quotas—Has Opposed This Basis—Hopeful Congress Will Defer Operation.

Washington, March 23 (AP).—Howing to his belief that the chief executive should be the first to obey the law even though he doesn't like it, President Hoover has proclaimed the new national origins quotas of the restrictive immigration act effective July 1.

At the same time it has been made clear that he is hopeful congress will act at the special session beginning next month to defer for another year operation of the national origins provision, so that the whole question may be reviewed at the regular session in December.

"The attorney general has advised me that in failure of congress to suspend action, it is now mandatory upon me under the immigration act to issue the proclamation establishing 'national origins' as the basis of immigration quotas," the President said in reply to questitons of the press yesterday, just before the proclamation was issued.

"The proclamation must be issued prior to April 1 and will be issued at once. It will go into effect on July 1 unless action is taken by congress in the meantime. While I am strongly in favor of restricted and selected immigration, I have opposed the national origins basis.

"I, therefore, naturally dislike the duty of issuing the proclamation and installing the new basis, but the President of the United States must be the first to obey the law."

Immediately after the proclamation was issued, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican house leader, said that if a measure deferring operation of the national origins provision should be adopted by the senate it would be considered in the house before July 1. Senate leaders were silent regarding the proposal, however.

The President favors a continuance of the present quotas, which are based on the 1890 census.

The new basis would reduce by more than 10,000 annually the number of persons admissible. Under it 153,714 would be admitted yearly, instead of 164,647 under the 1890 scale. The fight upon the proposal, however, has centered around the changes that would be made in the quotas of Germany, Norway and Sweden, England and Northern Ireland and several of the southern European countries.

$40,000,000 Pool To Help Traders

Action of Chicago Banks in Calling Upon Brokers to Reduce Their Loans Followed by Action to Provide Funds for Call Loans.

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—A forty million dollar pool was being formed today to be available for call loans secured by stocks listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

The pool was decided on last night after local banks had called upon their broker customers to reduce their loans. It followed a disastrous day on the Chicago exchange during which stocks were sold, regardless of price in response to the caling of loans by the banks.

R. Arthur Wood, president of the exchange, announced that $10,000,000 of the pool would be available today and the other $30,000,000 Monday.

The exchange, he said, would operate what corresponds to a money post of the New York Exchange, and would charge borrowers the prevailing New York call money rate.

Governors of the Chicago exchange conferred with representatives of loop banks last night. The conference was held after the regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank Board, at which no action was taken toward changing that institution's five per cent rediscount rate.

At Washington there was a meeting of the Federal Reserve Board, with all members and ex-officio members present, but no announcement was made as to the purpose, or what action, if any, was decided on.

Federal Reserve Bank Forced Action.

At last night's conference between bankers and stock exchange officers, the bankers explained that they had no desire to injure the local securities market. Their action in demanding that their broker-customers reduce their loans was forced, they explained, by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, which in turn acted on insistence from the Federal Reserve Board.

One explanation of yesterday's drop in prices on the Chicago exchange was that brokers had acted hastily in the effort to reduce their loans.

One result was the announcement by a large New York house that its Chicago branch should refuse to trade in Chicago exchange stocks except for cash if local banks refused to lend money on these securities. This house, however, decided not to force its customers out of local stocks when demand was made that it reduce its loans. Instead, it transferred $2,000,000 from New York to Chicago banks.

Rebels Repulsed At Mazatlan

Mexican Federal Forces Entrenched on Narrow Strip of Land Connecting City With Mainland—City Well Supplied With Food and Water.

Mexico City, March 23 (AP).—A government announcement said today that repeated rebel attacks on Mazatlan, west coast port, had been repulsed and that the forces of General Francisco Nanzo were beaten back. Today the rebels were said to be at Casa Blanca, five kilometers from the city.

The steamship Progreso, sent by the government with a load of provisions and ammunition, arrived at Mazatlan, and it was believed the city was amply stocked against the possibility of a shortage growing out of the siege. General Carrillo notified the central government also that he had plenty of water, even though the rebels cut supply lines into the city.

Carrillo's message to President Portes Gil expressed no concern as to the situation. He said that the federal garrison was entrenched on a narrow strip of land connecting the city with the mainland and that he would be able easily to hold off what he described as a "small rebel force."

A rebel officer who surrendered yesterday at Mazatlan gave the federals valuable information as to the status of the rebels' west coast army. He said 3,000 men under Generals Manzo, Roberto Cruz, Fausto Topete and Iturbe had proceeded down the west coast repairing the railroad tracks as they came and were now massed about Mazatlan.

Rebel Generals Deceive Troops.

He declared the troops had been deceived as to the progress of the revolution and knew nothing of the rebel defeats in Vera Cruz and at Torreon. Their generals have told them, he said, that their movement has the support of 20,000 so-called religious insurgents at Guadalajara and that they were pushing toward that point as fast as possible and might even eventually pass up the attack on Mazatlan.

The army of General Lozaro Cardenas, containing 6,000 men detached from the forces of General Calles, was said to be proceeding to Tepic, State of Nayarit, for action against the rebels at Mazatlan. Arrival at Tepic would intercept any movement against Guadalajara.

It was announced today that the seven naval officers who were arrested earlier in the week in connection with the activity of the fleet at Vera Cruz when the revolt started, would not be subjected to summary court martial but would face investigation in regular court channels. All are in prison here.

NEWBURGH GIRL SWALLOWS PIN; TAKEN TO NEW YORK

Mildred Crosby, six, daughter of Robert M. Crosby, of Newburgh, is at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital in New York, where she was taken Thursday for the removal of a brass identification tag which she had swallowed Wednesday. An X-ray taken at St. Luke's Hospital disclosed the pin, which is one inch by three-quarters of an inch, lodged at the opening of the stomach, and as no physician in Newburgh had the necessary instruments to remove the pin, the child was taken to New York where an effort to remove the pin was made Thursday but without avail. Whether an operation will be performed or time given for the pin to work its way out has not been determined.

COOLIDGE MAINTAINS RECORD FOR BREVITY

Northampton, Mass., March 23 (AP).—The penchant of Calvin Coolidge for brevity was illustrated once more upon his return here yesterday from his brief business trip to New York city, his first excursion from Northampton since relinquishing the presidency.

"Taxi, sir," inquired the chauffeur.

"Yes," said the former president, handing him his bag.

"Do you wish to go to 21 Massasoit street?" pursued the driver, and with a second and final "yes," Mr. Coolidge ended the conversation.

Addition to Kingston High School Necessary

Education Board Approves Resolution Calling For Preliminary Plans With Estimates—Unable to Properly Care for Present Enrollment of 1,150 Students—Fire Alarm Boxes Will Be Installed—Night School Report.

A resolution was unanimously passed at the meeting of the Board of Education held Friday evening that an addition to Kingston High School be erected in the near future to meet the demands of an increased enrollment. The resolution was offered by Vice President Beeres and was approved by President Flemming and Trustees Hayes, Betz and Matthews. The resolution submitted at the meeting called for preliminary plans with estimates to be referred back to the board at a future meeting.

The necessity for the addition was pointed out by President Flemming, who said it was impossible to take care of the 1,150 students now enrolled. This number will undoubtedly be increased at the new term which opens in September causing a greater problem. Trustee Beeres stated that if the addition was not erected the non-resident students could not be enrolled. He expressed the opinion that the citizens of Kingston would not approve of barring the non-resident pupil from the school.

Installation of Fire Alarm Boxes

Another resolution was passed by the board calling for the installation of fire alarm boxes in all the public schools of the city or on the premises on which the schools are located. Trustee Beeres, chairman of the building committee, reported that under the terms of a state law all schools must be so equipped by July 1 of this year. Fire Chief Murphy has prepared an estimate of the cost of installation which will be around $1,000. The fire chief also reported that at a number of the schools the boxes now adjacent to the schools can be moved to conform with the state requirements. This will save the city a large amount as the cost of a new box is $150. The installation of the new boxes and the moving of those nearby will be started immediately.

Schubert Choral Club Concert

Permission was granted the Schubert Choral Club the use of the High School Auditorium for their concert on Friday, April 12.

A resolution was adopted calling for the soliciting of sealed bids for general supplies, text books and library books.

The March payroll amounting to $29,942.77 was approved.

Night School Report.

The night school which closed on February 27 was in session seventy nights, the total registration being 158, all adults. The total cost for the period, exclusive of heat and light, was $1,616.86. The per capita cost was $10.22.

The full report submitted to the board is as follows:

To the Board of Education:

I respectfully submit the following report on night school which closed on Febuary 27, after it had been in session seventy nights. The total registration was 158, all aduits.

Principal Frank L. Meagher, of School No. 5, acted as principal of the night school, with the following teachers as assistants: Principals Finerty of No. 2, Van Valkenburgh of No. 4, and Russell of No. 2, Mr. Woodard and Mrs. Webster of the commercial department in the high school. Mr. Hoderath of the high school machine shop, and Miss Burgett, teacher of domestic science at the high school.

The total cost for teachers' salaries in night school amounted to	$1,481.00
Janitors' service, supplies, etc.	134.86
Total cost exclusive of heat and light	$1,615.86

The per capita cost on the basis of registration is $10.22.

The attendance was unusually good. Several of the students did not miss a night. Principal Meagher's report to me on the night school is of such excellent character that I am submitting it to you in full, as follows:

Supt. M. J. Michael, Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Michael:

Instead of presenting my usual monthly report of the night school, permit me to give a general report.

My idea of our night school is to give to those who have left day school an opportunity to learn whatever is needed to make them more proficient in their life work. The part I regret most is that the boys and girls who did not finish the elementary school course do not take advantage of the opportunity offered at the night school.

This school differs from the other public schools. We have no age limit for enrollment, no entrance examinations, no requirements for the completion of the course and no compulsory attendance.

We pick out the big things and emphasize the vital facts of the subject. We make every effort to help those who need the help and do not believe in failure. The

Youths Are Held For Grand Jury

Michael McCullough, Kasimer Lukasziewski and John Wolinski Waived Examination and Were Held for Grand Jury by Judge Shufeldt.

Michael McCullough, 19, of 126 Second avenue; Kasimer Lukasziewski, 20, of 13 Third avenue, and John Wolinski, 20 of 450 Delaware avenue, arrested several days ago charged with assaulting a fifteen-year-old girl, were arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court this morning and all three waived examination and were held for the grand jury. Bail in each case will be fixed by county court. The three had been held in the county jail pending the hearing this morning in default of furnishing $5,000 bail each, which had been fixed by Judge Shufeldt at the time the youths were arrested.

Lukasziewski is known as "Lucas", Wolinski as "Railroad" and MaCullough as "Mickey", according to the information sworn to by the girl at the time the warrant was issued for their arrest.

There was a large and disappointed crowd that filled the court room who had assembled in the hope of hearing some spicy evidence.

Drank Canned Heat.

George Gray, who said he lived at Wappingers Falls, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct on Friday at the West Shore station. The arrest was made by William Tierney, of the West Shore police force, who said that the man was attempting to entice young boys into a vacant lot near the railroad station.

When the charge was read to Gray he informed Judge Shufeldt that he was drunk at the time but did not remember doing anything like that.

It was brought out that Gray had been drinking "Sterno", a patented preparation that is also known as canned heat. He had two boxes of it with him when arrested.

Gray was sentenced to ten days in the county jail.

Boy Injured as Auto Hit Pipe

Winnie's Automobile Collided With Iron Pipe on Junk Wagon—Pipe Pierced Windshield and Four Year Old Boy Was Cut About Face.

Raymond Donald, the four year old son of Russell Winnie of 61 Gage street, was cut about the face Friday evening when the automobile his father was driving collided with the rear end of the junk wagon from the rear of which extended a long iron pipe. The iron pipe pierced the windshield of the automobile. The boy was rushed to the Kingston Hospital by the father where it was found necessary to take a number of stitches to close the wounds in the face. The wounds were sewed up by Dr. L. E. Sanford.

According to the story told by Mr. Winnie this morning in reporting the accident to the police, he was driving his Chevrolet car over Foxhall avenue. It was raining, and as he approached the West Shore railroad crossing near the silk mills he slowed down and made sure that no train was approaching and, then drove across the crossing. He said he did not see the junk dealers' wagon in the road ahead of him and the first thing he knew he crashed into the rear of the wagon. Fortunately he was driving slowly at the time.

In the front seat with Winnie was riding his young son, while also with him was Elsie Mattison, five years old, of 55 Gage street. The junk wagon was loaded with old auto tires and iron pipe. One piece of pipe extended past the rear of the wagon and it was this piece of pipe that crashed through the wind shield of the automobile. Mr. Winnie said he did not know whether the boy was injured by the pipe or the flying glass.

After the crash Mr. Winnie stopped his car and said that while the wagon carried a lighted lantern on the side, it was hidden from view by the load which was covered over with canvas. There was no rear light on the wagon. Mr. Winnie said he did not know the name of the junk dealer but would know him if he saw him again.

Another Grass Fire.

The fire department was called out Friday afternoon for another grass fire on South Wall street.

Famous Aviator Visits St. Remy

St. Remy, March 22.—Captain Harry Krom, one of the country's leading aviators, who is said to have given Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh his first flying lesson, visited at the home of George Johnston here Thursday. Captain Krom, who is a personal friend of Mr. Johnston, left today for the Ford plant at Detroit, Mich., where he is to inspect some planes.

Captain Krom, who worked with the world famous inventor, Thomas A. Edison, during the World War, is the veteran of many famous flights. He was one of the first three men to fly around the world. He accompanied Commander Byrd on his flight about the North Pole and was chief dispatcher on the gigantic dirigible Los Angeles when it crossed the Atlantic.

This renowned flyer is now working on a book which will tell of the experiences he and his companions went through on some of the flights they took. It will go to the publisher in a very short time and, it is expected, will be in great demand when put on the market.

Schenectady—The annual state convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will be held here, June 16 to 18. One hundred and fifty delegates have been named by various aeries throughout the state and it is expected more than two persons will attend the sessions.

Portville—While sawing through an eight-inch maple log, George Grimes of Gleason Hollow found the outline of a miniature hand in a cross-section of the trunk. The print was almost perfect in detail, the wrist being located at the center of the cross-section and the fingers pointing toward the bark. The print was of a left hand and even the fingernails were plain.

Buffalo—Nine mechanics of the army of the Republic of Chile are taking intensive training in airplane construction at the local plant of the Curtiss Airplane and Motor Company.

Rochester—The University of Rochester has installed a machine which gives "automatic" lectures on geology. The machine inserts one slide after another, and students are conjecturing as to how long it will be before a speaking unit will be added, thereby doing away entirely with the services of the geology professor. One thing the machine cannot do is conduct geology quizzes.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, March 23.—The community party held in the village hall on the evening of the 19th was fairly well attended. Dominoes and cards were enjoyed by those present, and a collection of twelve dollars was taken up for the old ladies' home in Kingston.

Earl ("Ted") North has replaced his old Chevrolet with one of the new six cylinder coaches. Lyons' garage made the sale.

Squire Henry Elmendorf, who has been ill for the past several months, was out for a little stroll last Thursday.

Frank Myers, who conducts a refreshment stand on the old George Windrum property, has moved his store building back several feet to make way for the encroachment of the new state road at that point. Mr. Meyers is also putting on a sixteen foot addition to his place of business.

Fred Guinack, the expert wood sawyer of Ashokan Heights worked up two big piles of wood for Winchells the first two days of last week. Helping Fred were Clarence Phillips, Herman Morris and Earl Elmendorf. The wood was taken out of the lowlands on the former Albert Davis farm, which Mr. Winchell is gradually converting into pasture land. According to John Davis, this tract once grew excellent grass, which, owing to water conditions and the rich soil, seldom gave out even in the driest seasons. Incidentally, it is worth noting that bounding these fields are some of the finest examples of the stone-wall layer's skill to be found in the Catskills. The pioneer who fashioned these walls was familiar with two important secrets of the now ancient art; a good foundation and a heavy capping of large, flat stones to keep the whole in place.

Employes of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Company are now engaged in setting back the power line poles along the line of the new state road. Along the stretch between this village and Ashokan the poles are to be moved three feet in some instances.

A pleasant caller on old friends here last Thursday was John G. Eckert, of Kingston, who used to live at West Shokan. John certainly looks fine, and he reports his daughter, May, in good health, though Mrs. Eckert is far from well. While a resident of Olive, Mr. Eckert was an enthusiastic owner and driver of good horses, and May, also, was an expert horsewoman; now, although they all ride in a car, there still remains the old yearning again to sit in buckboard or buggy while holding the reins behind a fast-stepping horse.

Homer Markle, Jr., the enterprising poultryman, has suspended his maple syrup operations for the season, in order to begin work on two new brooder houses which he plans to build himself. Mr. Markle, who keeps White Plymouth Rock fowls, has also some fine turkeys which are now laying. With turkey eggs for hatching rated at somewhere around six dollars a setting, Homer should cash in pretty well on this phase of his business. Mr. Markle and his father plan, later on, to build a porch on the east side of their house.

Leonard Ruckert drove a truckload of junk to market last week, the stuff being some of the left-overs from the big auction of last month. Harvey Silkworth, who was employed by Mr. Ruckert on the farm, is now taking care of things around the latter's store in the village.

Among the faithful communicants at the Olive and Hurley Baptist Church here are John Hasbrouck and Orville Winchell and their wives of Kingston. The Hasbroucks and Winchells, like a number of other members of the congregation, make the trip here by motor on the Sundays set aside for the meetings. Mr. Hasbrouck, before moving to Kingston, lived in the house on the corner, which he built after leaving the old farm near Boiceville now run by Fred and Frank Stevens. Mr. Winchell, also, is a former resident of Olive, being a son of the late William Winchell, and a grandson of Elder Jacob Winchell, the well known O. S. Baptist preacher and farmer, whose homestead was the Story place at the foot of Tys-te-Nyck mountain, and which the latter and his brother, Lemuel, cleared up and developed a century ago. Tradition has it that these two young men, whose father, Peter Winchell, owned a mill and large tract of land near Brown's Station, used to journey up the mountain every day, returning home at night after a day of Herculean labor at felling trees and building stone walls. of Kingston now owns and maintains a summer residence on that part of the tract chosen by Lemuel Winchell for his homestead. So much for a bit of local biography and history.

The Herbert Dibbell mansion and the Sentimilosky house on the adjoining farm (Clarence Markle place) have not been occupied this winter. To balance these vacancies, however, there are the new homes of Mrs. Deyo and Mr. Sahlbeck on the state road near the turn-houses which were erected on plots purchased from Judge D. L. Windrum, local real estate operator. The Dumont cottage on the opposite side of the brook is occupied by Mr. Riseley, who is employed as mechanic at Ben Moe's Mt. Tremper garage. A little farther west, A. E. Scott and family have their snug summer bungalow, they being the only local people to have both a "town house" in the village and a summer retreat in the outskirts of Shokan.

Ye olde time wedding bells rang out in Olive on the 27th and 28th of March, 1850; on the first named date Hugh Merrihew and Mary Merrihew were married by Martin H. Schutt, while on the following day—a Thursday—Edward Merrihew and Charlotte Bodley were joined in Hymen's bonds by the same barrister. The Merrihew family have, of course, long been identified with life in the southwestern part of the town, where many of this highly respected family still reside. Mr. Schutt, the lawyer, was an antibellum contemporary in the legal profession of such men as Benjamin Turner of Shokan and Henry Griffith of Shandaken. He was the father of Miss Ellen Schutt, who resides in the village. Messrs. Schutt and Turner, by the way, were next door neighbors, their homes being across the Plank road from the old mill pond, where John DuBois, a Civil War veteran, later had his wagon making shop. While this writer cannot recall seeing Martin Schutt, he well remembers Mr. Turner, who in later years was a little, bent old man with white pointed beard. The latter had his law offices in the basement of a rambling three-story building, and in this rather musty place were crowded a vast store of papers and books touching on the man's honored profession. Those were the days when lawsuits and boundary disputes waxed aplenty, and no one thought of going to Kingston to employ legal talent. So, what with the ever-recurring litigations, the Revolutionary and Mexican War pensions to be fixed up, the innumerable real estate transfers to be drawn, and the usually not infrequent marriages—what with all this business, the two local barristers, far from starving each other out, each enjoyed their meed of prosperity.

Old Records in Danger

The parish churches of England, long the hunting grounds of persons interested in genealogy, and their agents, have suffered so much from such hands that steps are being taken to save their records. These church records go back to the reign of Henry VIII, and until 1840 they were the only records of births, marriages, baptisms and deaths. Constant handling of these records, says The Pathfinder Magazine, has damaged them. Not only that, but unscrupulous genealogists have not hesitated to tamper with them, making alterations to suit their desires. Church officials declare that most of the persons coming to examine the parish records are money seekers. A large proportion of them are Americans.

London Mayor Busy Man

The lord mayor of London presides over one square mile of territory, for that is the extent of the "city." Within its boundaries are situated the bank of England and ober great financial institutions. There are some 1,800 policemen detailed to guard the district, so criminals give it a wide berth. The lord mayor receives as much pay as the President of the United States and is the highest-salaried magistrate in the world. In one year he attended 130 public dinners, 85 receptions, 35 meetings and delivered 1,100 speeches.

Deadly Gas

The most dangerous property of carbon monoxide gas, apart from its poisonous qualities, is the fact that it is colorless, odorless and tasteless. Consequently, it is difficult to detect and when inhaled a very small percentage of this gas in the air is sufficient to cause death within a few minutes. This gas combines with the hemoglobin of the blood, producing headache and giddiness, then asphyxiation.

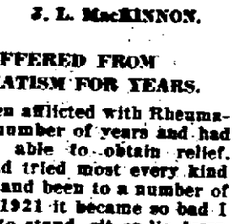
Taking One More Chance

When a man has suffered from a chronic complaint for a number of years; tried one method after another without result, except expense and possible added suffering, he is apt to become resigned to his fate.

Many an individual is thankful that, after arriving at this mental attitude, something impelled him to take one more chance, and see a Chiropractor, there to find the health vainly sought elsewhere.

A typical case of this sort is that of Mr. Walter Gover, who for many years had been afflicted with rheumatism. He did not know, of course, that spinal nerve congestion was causing his trouble, and no one told him that it was, so it really was luck that sent him to the Chiropractor.



If you are ill and have never found relief, would it perhaps not be well for you, too, to "Take one more chance", as Mr. Gover did, and consult a reliable Chiropractor

SUFFERED FROM RHEUMATISM FOR YEARS.

"I had been afflicted with Rheumatism for a number of years and had never been able to obtain relief, though I had tried most every kind of medicine and been to a number of doctors. In 1921 it became so bad I was unable to stand, sit or lie down with comfort, could scarcely walk and could scarcely sleep. I was constipated and forced to take a laxative every day. About a year later I heard of Chiropractic and decided to try it as I had tried everything else. After the first two adjustments I felt relief. I was soon able to discard my walking stick. I am now completely relieved of rheumatism and have been in the best of health ever since."—Walter F. Gover, Chiropractic Research Bureau. Statement No. 2123-M.

Our success is due to our policy of never accepting cases that we cannot benefit.

In addition to the training received at the world's most prominent Chiropractic universities, supplemented by fourteen years' actual practice and observation, we have originated and are using our own system of scientific treatment which is a distinct advance over methods commonly in use.

Fifteen Texts That You Cannot Find

Read your Bible through from beginning to end, over and over again, and you will not find—

1. One text that says that the Sabbath was ever changed from the seventh day to the first.
2. One text where the first day is ever called a holy day.
3. One text where we are told to keep the first day of the week.
4. One text that says that Jesus ever kept the first day.
5. One text where the first day is ever given any sacred title.
6. One text that tells us to keep the first day in honor of the resurrection of Christ.
7. One text from any of the writings of the apostles that authorizes the observance of Sunday.
8. One text that gives any instruction as to how the first day of the week should be observed as a day of rest.
9. One text where it says that it was customary for the church to meet on that day.
10. One text where we are told not to work on the first day.
11. One text that says that the seventh day is not now God's holy rest day.
12. One text that says that the seventh day is abolished.
13. One text that releases us from keeping the seventh day.
14. One text where the apostles taught their converts to keep Sunday.
15. One text where the first day was ever appointed to be kept as the Lord's Day.

Church And School Notes

(By The Associated Press)

Albany, N. Y., March 23.—School children at Theresa, in Jefferson county, are called to school by a bell which was captured by two Theresa soldiers from a locomotive used by the Confederates during the Civil War.

The bell has hung in the school belfry for 65 years and probably will be hung in a new schoolhouse which is being planned.

George Proede of Brooklyn has been paralyzed for 13 years but he recently received his high school diploma from the New York city board of education. The board sent a teacher to the boy's home three times a week for nine years, providing instruction and books without cost.

During the past year, 150,194 certificates of literacy were issued by the schools of this state to prospective voters, compared with 48,605 in 1927.

Miss Philomela Wicker, principal of the Weedsville School, Ticonderoga, will retire at the end of this school year after 30 years of service.

FRENCH ACADEMICIANS FAVOR WOMAN'S VOTE

Paris, March 23 (AP).—Women's vote has many warm supporters in that stronghold of conservation, the French Academy. In fact a majority of the forty immortals expressed themselves heartily favorable when asked by Madame La Vert Chotard, president of the French National Women's Union.

Not Greek to Her

Even the somewhat unfamiliar Greek letter alphabet gets itself translated somehow. When nine-year-old Dorothy was entertained at dinner for the first time at a fraternity house which bore the Greek symbols over the door, one of them being the letter Omega in its Greek form, she was heard afterward relating her social career at the "A. T. Horseshoe" house.

Sunday School Meeting at Accord

On Thursday evening of this week the pastors, superintendents, teachers and other interested Sunday school workers of Accord and vicinity met at the Accord Reformed Church for the fourth meeting in the series of conferences under the auspices of the Ulster County Sunday School Association. It was well attended, sixty being present. The Rev. Cornelius Van Tol, president of the county association, presided. The Rev. George Gosselink, pastor of the Accord Reformed Church, led the devotions.

The Rev. Warren M. Blodgett, director of young people's work, spoke on the way young people should be managed so as to keep them in church and Sunday school. He said that they should be given a part in the worship, such as singing, ushering and other ways that they could serve. Also in churches where it is possible they should have a junior choir. For this they need a real leader, one who will take a real interest.

The Rev. Cornelius Van Tol suggested that the local churches reorganize their district. The majority were in favor.

The pastors present arranged for a meeting to be held April 15 at 8 o'clock at the Accord Reformed Church to which all the pastors, superintendents and other interested church workers in Accord and nearby villages are requested to be present.

Davis & Miller Dissolve.

The real estate firm of Davis & Miller has been dissolved, Louis B. Davis retiring because of ill health. The business will be continued at 48 Main street, by Walter C. Miller who has been connected with the agency for a number of years. The agency is one of the oldest in the Hudson River valley, being started by the late Charles T. Coutant whom Mr. Davis joined as a partner and later Mr. Coutant was succeeded in the firm by Mr. Miller.

TROUBLED TERWILLIGERS.

Sunday, March 17, was a hard day for the Terwilliger family in the little town of Walden, N. Y. Not only were there piles of more letters and telegrams than could be read, but the telephone was constantly ringing and all the place was trampled down by reporters, photographers and crowds of curious persons who wanted to look at the thirteen-year-old girl who had "reproved the Chief Justice of the United States." The "talkies" insisted on arranging a date for little Helen to make a sound cinema, and the tabloids wanted a picture not only of the young heroine waving her "reproving" letter but even snapshots of "Pa" and "Ma" Terwilliger.

All the Terwilligers appear to have hated the publicity and resented such boisterous intrusion. Both parents and child insisted that the letter was not written to Mr. Taft with the idea of "reproving" or even "catching" him; that little Helen merely wanted to know why, when swearing in President Hoover, he changed the wording of the oath—"if there was some special reason for it." And they all expressed deep regret at the thought that the Chief Justice was being "annoyed" by so much unforeseen publicity. Though we may suspect that little Helen did want to "catch" Mr. Taft—an aspiration for which a bright school girl might be forgiven, —it is obvious that she could not have foreseen a hundredth part of the consequences, and the attitude of the whole Terwilliger family shows that they are sensible, decent folk. The reporters, tabloids and "talkies" are not primarily to blame, but the avid appetite for any sort of sensation on the part of a large section of the American public—people with an almost insane curiosity about anybody who gets into the limelight, whether honorably or dishonorably.

TWO OLD-TIME INAUGURALS.

Comment on the ninety-second anniversary of President Grover Cleveland's birth, March 18, brought out the fact that in his first inaugural address he displayed a readiness and ease as a speaker altogether unexpected in a man of so little previous public experience, the following being quoted from the "Recollections of Grover Cleveland" by George F. Parker: "Almost every President, from the earliest days, had read his inaugural address. But Mr. Cleveland made a departure when, rising before the audience (without a manuscript or word of note before him), he delivered his address with the calmness and coolness which might have marked the professional orator, and with a dignity and impressiveness soon recognized in every part of the country."

The same comment on March 18 brought out the highly interesting fact that President George Washington found his first inaugural much more difficult—the following being quoted from the diary of Senator William Maclay: "The great man was agitated and embarrassed more than ever he was by the leveled cannon or pointed musket. He trembled, and several times could scarce make out to read, though it must be supposed he had often read it before. He made a flourish with his right hand which left rather an ungainly impression. I sincerely, for my part, wished all set ceremony in the hands of the dancing masters, and that this first of men had read off his address in the plainest manner without ever taking his eyes from the paper; for I felt hurt that he was not first in everything."

WISE, IF NOT OVERDONE.

According to the Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript, President Hoover believes that "the major diplomatic posts in Europe, which are the best paid and which for other reasons have attracted the best abilities, are not now . . . of as great importance as some of those in other parts of the world where our interests are rapidly expanding, and where lie our most promising fields of commercial development." The "other parts of the world" chiefly in mind, it is said, are the republics of Latin America, and the point is that Mr. Hoover intends to give a great deal more attention to our diplomatic representation in South America than has been done hitherto.

This is commendable, not merely with a view to the extension of our trade in a rapidly developing part of the world, but with a view to the maintenance of friendly relations. It would, however, be a mistake to conclude that first rate diplomatic representation is now more important in South America than in Europe. The important centers of diplomacy have not yet been transferred from London, Paris, Rome and Berlin to Rio Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Santiago and Lima, and perhaps never will be. Apart from all other considerations, and they are many, Europe's indebtedness to us alone renders that part of the world more important in a diplomatic sense. Extended trade with South America is of great importance, but Europe is still and is likely to remain the world's potential storm center.

The claim that a man was recently bitten by a shark in Florida waters has revived controversy as to whether this fish ever attacks man. Some supposed authorities say not, but age-old tradition backed by innumerable alleged happenings supports the affirmative. To the victim, however, it matters little whether it was a shark or some other fearsome creature of the deep that chewed him up.

CURING GOITRE

You see many cases of goitre or enlargement of the thyroid gland of the neck, and wonder why some of these folks look normal, and others have a sort of bulging of the eyes and appear to be very nervous, with tremor of hands, rapid pulse, and loss of weight and strength.

It is this latter type of case that is known as Grave's disease, and it is these cases that are serious and often require operation.

Although operation for the removal of a part of the thyroid gland is comparatively safe, there are quite a number of these patients who naturally dislike the idea of an operation.

It is therefore gratifying to learn of the success of the X-ray treatment in these cases.

Dr. M. R. J. Hayes presents a report of 100 unselected consecutive cases from private records.

Practically all of these cases were of long duration before they had the X-ray treatment.

Of the 100 cases, 62 may be considered cured, 14 improved, 17 abandoned treatment, 7 unknown.

The cured cases are those in which the pulse rate has come down to normal, the tremors have disappeared, weight increased, and the patients able to go back to their regular work again.

Treatments are given every second day for a month, then there is a rest interval of three weeks and a second series of treatments are given. If this is not sufficient, after another rest interval a third series is given.

Now the objection to this method of treatment of course is the number of times the patient has to report for treatment, which accounts for the number in above series who abandoned the treatment.

On the other hand, although operation is comparatively safe, the X-ray treatment is absolutely safe from a life and death standpoint. The careful application of lard every night during, and for months after the treatment, prevents any skin irritation.

I have mentioned this form of treatment more than once before because so many patients who fear an operation do not undergo any treatment whatever, and naturally their condition grows so bad that an operation is finally necessary and finds them in poor shape to withstand it.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Fried says he would far rather stand on the bridge of the America and face a stinging nor-wester than to be confronted by an admiring throng waiting for him to make a speech. He declares he does not feel like a hero; does not, in fact, know how a hero should feel. He got a big thrill out of a visit to Worcester, Mass., his home town, however, while the New York and other receptions left him dazed.

By CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
[Copyright, 1929, Associated Press]

CHAPTER XXIII.

Twice I have been the central figure in rather spectacular sea rescues and twice I have been honored and feted by thousands of my fellow citizens in various parts of the country, but I can assure you that it is far easier standing on the bridge of my America facing a stinging nor'wester than to be confronted by an admiring throng waiting for me to make a speech. A sailor is at home on a ship but not in a hall or auditorium or behind the banquet table. Sailors may be noted for spinning yarns but not at banquets.

..."The tremendous ovations made me feel it was all a dream..."

After the Antinoe rescue this hero business was all new and strange. I felt it was all a dream. It was an amazing and bewildering experience and never once did I know what to expect next. I weathered the first so after the second I felt resigned to whatever might come.

As great, if not greater, was my last greeting in New York City and later I visited Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Providence, Chicago, Cincinnati, Culver, Ind., and my home town, Worcester, Mass. In each city I was given tremendous ovations and extended such unusual courtesies that each experience will always be indelibly carved in my memory, but with it all I have one regret—that I did not have with me my chief officer, Mr. Manning, and his splendid boat crew.

Like a general commanding an army or an admiral directing a squadron of ships, the captain of a merchant vessel receives credit for something done by his officers and men. But there are others whose work cannot be overlooked. First of all there is the personal heroism of every individual in the boat crew who endangers his life by venturing in an open boat on a high sea. Then there are the men who double up to maintain the steam pressure in the boilers and the alert engine crew that responds instantly to orders from the bridge. The loss of a moment in executing an order by these men might mean disaster and yet they can see nothing from their positions in the hold of the ship. The credit for effecting a safe rescue belongs to every man in the crew, but in the case of failure, the blame is placed upon the shoulders of the captain.

I do not particularly feel like a hero. The fact is I do not know how a hero should feel, yet there is a certain amount of self satisfaction and pride in knowing that with Divine Guidance I was successful in finding both disabled ships and getting their human cargo aboard my vessels. But after all, it was in the line of my duty and the master of any ship in my position would have done his best.

I could have enjoyed all the receptions that have been given in my honor if I had never been called on to make a speech. Responding to eloquent discourses on heroism is the most difficult part of the rescue business. At first I could not enjoy the banquets and luncheons at all. All too quickly the toastmaster would rise and the speeches would start. I would try to listen and at the same time endeavor to prepare in my mind a response that would be appropriate. But when I arose my mind was befuddled. If I had any idea of what I was going to say before I started, I had forgotten it. My voice sounded so weak. Words would fail me and my embarrassment did not help matters any. Then I would sputter something and would not lose much time in returning to my seat. I was called upon so often that after a while I could concentrate and at least say what I wanted. I still appreciate that I will never become an orator and I have no ambitions along those lines.

After my last rescue job I decided to send a radio to the general manager of the United States Lines suggesting that he protect me from an extensive program with parades and banquets. Radio messages were coming to me thick and fast—messages of congratulations and requests to be present at various functions in different parts of the country. New York City wanted to extend its usual greeting and I was asked if I would consider a parade up Broadway, a luncheon and theatre party the first day and then another luncheon. These I could not refuse. Then a new angle developed in this hero business. Invitations came from 18 cities requesting that I pay them a visit as their guest. Philadelphia was particularly insistent, with my old friend, Sam T. Banham, demanding my presence. Owing to the brief time available the itinerary was, of necessity, cut short.

The one thing that impressed me most was the sincerity of the people, officials and civilians, who greeted me everywhere, but the place that gave me the greatest thrill of all was Worcester. There I visited my old school and was almost mobbed by the kiddies and went to many of my childhood haunts and shook hands once again with my former playmates. That day brought back many fond memories of the days that few of us want to forget.

AROUND THE WORLD

London, (AP).—Mrs. Helen B. Taylor, a pioneer suffragist, died here at the age of 94. She canvassed for John Stuart Mill when the author of treatises on political economy sought the parliamentary seat for Westminster.

Aosta, Italy, (AP).—This mountainous region in northwest Italy is making a record in Mussolini's campaign for larger families. Within a recent five days' period eight mothers presented twins to the fatherland. Congratulations from the premier and a present of 300 lire—equivalent to about $15.75—were conveyed to each family by the prefect of the district.

Vienna, (AP).—Thirty thousand horses were consumed by Vienna last year says the National Butchers Association. Many Austrians assert horse flesh is more nourishing than beef and some restaurants serve it exclusively. Besides it costs less than beef.

Dublin (AP).—Librarians have reported that Hugh Walpole, an English author, is more popular among Free State readers than any Irish writer of fiction. Down Byrne is the only Irishman whose books have a wide circulation. The librarians noticed that Eamon de Valera and other members of the republican group are reading works on constitutional law.

Vienna (AP).—"Shooting snipes," particularly cigarette stubs, will hereafter subject beggars who look to the gutters to their smokes to heavy fines and imprisonment. Vienna medical authorities persuaded the government to put the regulation into effect on sanitary grounds.

Rome (AP).—Italy is preparing to celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of the poet Virgil. Naples, where Virgil wrote the Aeneid, is building a monument for the poet's tomb at a cost of $160,000.

Paris (AP).—The city has made for architects a new geological map showing the strata of rocks and sand and the subterranean streams that underlie Paris. Hitherto architects have had to search centurys old reports or make their own soundings to determine the type of foundations needed for new structures.

Munich (AP).—The cities of Munich and Strassburg have exchanged monuments. In return for a fountain symbolizing "Father Rhine" presented by Strassburg, this city has sent to the other municipality a statue known locally as "the mice tempter," the nickname of Strassburgers.

Astrakhan, Russia (AP).—Forty-three noblemen have been exiled by a decree of the Central Executive Committee of the Kirgiz Autonomous Republic. They were accused of oppressing peasants. Their property has passed to the Kirgiz republic.

SWEDES SEEK HOMELAND AFTER 250 YEARS EXILE.

By ULRIC SALCHOW
(Associated Press Correspondent.)

Stockholm, March 23 (AP).—After 250 years exile from their ancestral homeland, a Swedish colony which now numbers 800 villagers and farmers of Gammalsvensky in the government of Cherson, Southern Russia, has appealed to the Stockholm government to be brought back to Sweden.

Their story is that of a community exiled for centuries yet always dreaming of their homeland, and for generation after generation rigidly maintaining their native schools, language, customs and religion. Their ancestors left Swedish shores about 1670, and for 100 years were settled on the Estonian island of Dagoe.

In 1781 Empress Catharine II of Russia ordered them to the Ukrainian steppes near the falls of the river Dneiper. Cossacks escorted them on that forced march. Their caravans, like the wagon trains that crossed the western plains of America in the days of '49, crawled 1,200 miles to the new home.

The journey took nine months, and more than half the colonists died on the way. In 1792 the group numbered only 200 persons, according to the cherished church record of the Swedish vicar.

When forefathers of the group left Sweden, Dagoe island and all the Baltic territory belonged to Sweden. The liberties they had enjoyed under Swedish rule were taken from them in 1721 when Russia, expanding toward the sea, took possession of Baltic shores. Russian land owners attempted to force the Swedish settlers into a condition of serfdom. The Swedes sent deputy after deputy to the Empress, and at last, in 1780, succeeded in getting an imperial ukase which defended their rights, a precursor of the liberty granted all Russian peasants 80 years later.

But under the new freedom the colony was ordered to the Ukrainian steppes. The tenacity with which they have clung to Swedish culture, a record plainly preserved in parish Bibles, has aroused deep admiration through Sweden, and the government is studying plans to help the Gammalsvensky colony realize its ambitions.

Kingston Folks Visit New Theatre

(By F. G. Clough.)

New York, N. Y., March 22.—A number of Kingstonians and persons from the Woodstock art colony have visited this winter a new theatre in New York. The theatre really isn't in New York, for I refer to the Old Rialto in Hoboken, made popular by C. Morley and C. Throckmorton and their partners. The Freeman previously has carried some mention of "Old Heidelberg" and "After Dark;" the second mentioned play is still running at the Old Rialto in Hoboken. Kingstonians going to New York for week-end trips, or longer, will find the Hoboken Theatre offers something delightfully different than the run of plays to be seen on Broadway.

Last week the Morley management leased another theatre and opened another play in Hoboken. Their new house is the Lyric Theatre and their first play there is "The Black Crook," a middle nineteenth century play revived for their premiere. "The Black Crook" is a "Renowned magical and spectacular drama . . . . . supposed to take place about the year 1600, in Germany, among the Hartz Mountains."

Those who like something out of the ordinary will enjoy the bizarre revival of what was a scandalous performance back some seventy years and called forth the violent newspaper denunciation of clergymen of yesteryear. One must first state that today the costumes and the lines in the play are hardly shocking; to the writer, there was a decided charm in the presentation of several of the ballet dances which engaged our grandmothers in their salad days. There was nothing of modern vulgarity in the whole play.

It is almost impossible to describe in these few paragraphs the various extravaganzas of this musical spectacle. To mention a few of the things one might expect,—there are tableaux and dances and songs. There are rapid scene changes with extraordinary settings. The character of the Black Crook evoked many evil spirits in his necromancy and one sees startling mechanical and electrical sights with subterranean vaults, illuminated gardens, forests afire and sword combats. There are ghosts, flying spirits, devils, acrobats and fairies.

Of course The Black Crook is ostensibly a ballet show, or a chorus, or a musical show, or whatever you want to call it. But outstanding, in the full evening's performance is the performance of several ballet dances in which charming costumes and equally winning music and healthy dances intrigue one; the scorcery of the Black Crook beats any magician's act; the stage settings are the last word in modern marvels; the orchestra music leaves little to be desired.

With programs at this unique theatre one gets also an announcement which asks members of the audience to point out to ushers anyone whose conduct constitutes a nuisance. This was done on account of noise and interruption which hampers the actors. This theatre has been filled to overflowing ever since its opening; the audience has been boisterous in applause to the point of offense ever since,—but the delightful old melodrama is such a lark in theatrical offerings that one can excuse almost any annoyance.

If one likes the tinsel and glamor and the gay lights of the average Broadway Theatre in New York, one might not feel repaid for the short tunnel journey to Hoboken,—but if one enjoys something unique and novel in theatricals, and places any credence on the judgment of those who join the crowds night after night at the ticket offices of the two Hoboken theatres, one will prefer not to visit New York without taking the Hoboken trip and seeing either the Old Rialto or the Lyric offering. The writer is indebted to the press manager for two and a half hours of high fun at the Lyric under the spell of the Black Crook and his female accomplices.

SUBWAY UNDER SAHARA ENTHUSED BY FRENCH

By JOHN EVANS

(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Paris, March 23 (AP).—A subway across the Sahara desert is being seriously considered along with the project for a tunnel under the English channel and the Spanish dream of a floating bridge or tunnel to span the Strait of Gibraltar. Fantastic as it sounds and high as would be the initial cost, no other satisfactory method of rapid transit across the shifting sands has been offered.

France is determined to run a railroad across the Sahara, for both economic and military reasons. Parliament has ordered a thorough investigation of the problem and a technical commission already has begun to study that may require a year or more. Unfortunately, if the idea is good, its execution presents difficulties.

For six years, there have been occasional automobile expeditions across the desert but that form of travel is rejected as absolutely inadequate. For one thing, it is considered impossible to transport troops rapidly in that way.

As for a railroad, the problem is to find some means of keeping the rails clear of sand. The Sahara is not all a dry sea of sand. There are vast stretches of barren, rocky or pebbled surface where it is practicable to make a solid right of way for a railroad. There are, however, at least 125 miles where the shifting sands are quite as volatile as poets and travelers have pictured them, where a clear hard road is obliterated in a few hours, where hills of sand block the way in the morning and by night are blown off and a hollow bored by the steady blast of a hot wind.

Some engineers have told the commission the only way to keep the sand in place would be to plant vegetation but that would require water, which is not there. Probably too the seeds would be blown away before they took root, so that plan is deemed impossible by most experts.

Others proposed building shields but experiments and observation indicated sand dunes soon would overtop them. Then the problem would be as it was in the beginning.

The tunnel idea offered by a French engineer, Paul Remy, contemplates a metal tube supported on a sort of sunken skeleton viaduct of cross-ties and piles. The tube would make it simple to lay telephone and electric cables across the desert and might house also water and gas pipes.

In time the desert winds would submerge the tube in the sand, insulating it from the intense heat and making travel safer and more comfortable than by an open air train. The power naturally would be electric.

MANY ATHLETES USE OLD MANILA BASTION

Manila, P. I., March 23 (AP).—Historic Fort San Antonio de Abad, the first of Manila's land defenses to fall to the American forces in the Spanish-American War, has been made into a recreation center. It is now known as the Asiatic Fleet Athletic Field.

It is used by the men of the fleet when they come to Manila from China each year. Showers, lockers, a ring for boxing and wrestling, and punching bags have been installed inside the old fort, and an athletic field has been made out of the adjoining land.

The field is spacious. As many as 15 teams playing baseball, rugby, soccer and basketball have used it at one time. The sailors this winter especially tried to improve their rugby and soccer, in order that they might make a showing against the British service teams in China.

Fort San Antonio de Abad was the only place where real fighting occurred in connection with the capture of Manila on August 13, 1898. It had been arranged that the city would be surrendered after a few shots had been exchanged to save the face of the Spanish commander. But the fort resisted so the American warships in Manila bay shelled it, and the American land forces, advancing from the south, took it by storm. A few minutes later the city was formally surrendered.

BROTHERHOOD

In every patch of timber, you
Will always find a tree or two
That would have fallen long ago,
Borne down by wind or age or snow,
Had not another neighbor tree
Held out its arms in sympathy
And caught the tree the storm had hurled
To earth. So brothers, is the world.

In every patch of timber stand
Samaritans of forest land,
The birch, the maple, oak, and pine,
The fir, the cedar, all the line;
In every wood, unseen, unknown,
They bear their burdens of their own
And bear as well another form,
Some brother stricken by the storm.

Shall trees be nobler to their kind
Than men, who boast the noble mind?
Shall there exist within the wood
This great eternal brotherhood
Of oak, and pine, of hill, and fen,
And not within the hearts of men?
God grant that men are like to these,
And brothers brotherly as trees.

FIRST CRAVATS WORN BY CROATIAN DANDIES

Budapest, Hungary, March 23 (AP).—Opposing the French claim that the inventor of the necktie is a Frenchman, the newspaper Budapesti Hirlap contends that the Croats were the originators of the "cravat." In support of this theory the Hungarian newspaper asserts that the word cravat, which means "throat" in Serbian, was applied to a red scarf which Croat chiefs tied round their necks when they were in full uniform.

The newspaper claims that the Republic was not accepted in the French until after the abolition of the court costume, following the fall of the Second Empire. England and the other European countries adopted the "cravat" a few years later.

New Fabrics and New Lines in Tailored Suits From Paris

Women Decree Tailleurs Must Have Some Smart Feature.

New York—While the Easter costume is undoubtedly the coat dress, whether an ensemble in fact or in effect only, there is no denying the response American women feel to the smart tailored suit. It is essential however that such a suit must have some novel feature. Usually it is introduced in the fabric, and sometimes in the color as well. Suits, whether for sports or town wear seem inclined toward gayer colors. The most approved woolen mixtures from which they are cut, have a plasing way of being bright, rather than neutral. Also of being patterned rather than plain.

While the asymmetric line continues to be a pronounced feature in coats, and in suits of the costume genre, simple little suits, with or without belts, and sometimes with a nip-in waistline, are warmly approved. While of course such suits remain straight in line, there is always a released pleat or two, or some cleverly introduced godet to give the skirt the fulness which is necessary to all smart skirts this spring. Yokes occur on coats, and on skirts also and clever seam treatments are important. The spring tailleur contrives in some ingenous way to be feminine, and to this end the blouse is useful since it is invaribly frilled or bowed, or finished by a softening cascade. The fox scarf plays its usual spring role, and appears in more than the usual range of colors.

Slip-on gloves are smart in egg shell and sun tan hues. The problem of what glove color to select is often a perplexing one. The decision should be governed by the tone of the stocking, shoes and handbag. Sun tan is the watch word of the smart set today.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By the Associated Press.)

New York—David Layton, 60, national secretary of Phi Beta Kappa, and former school teacher, has enrolled for the ninth year in a course at Columbia University on summer camp leadership. "I learn something new every year," he explains.

New York—The show that the late Young Griffo gave often in a barroom standing on a handkerchief and dodging blows of anybody who tried to hit him was profitable. Supposed to have died penniless, he left $3,500 in bank. By court order $500 has been turned over to the estate of Tex Rickard, who paid for the boxer's funeral.

Ottawa—Only super normal women may be commercial pilots in Canada. The civil aviation branch of the department of national defence has ruled that they must undergo the same tests as men. A woman seeking a private pilot's license need have only seven-tenths of the physical strength of a man, a proportion which the authorities regard as normal for the sex.

New York—Having contracts for the talkies which he expects will bring him $350,000, Tita Ruffo is to leave the Metropolitan Opera. "I felt that this new medium gives the artist a better chance to put himself across," he explained.

Washington—It should be worth while tuning in on the Columbia chain at 10 p. m. tonight to hear two Ruths, Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Owen, members of congress, will speak.

New York—Unquestionably, in the opinion of Dr. John M. Hiss of Columbus, O., one of the reasons for divorce suits is the wife's corns. He gave his opinion at the convention of the Eastern Osteopathic Association.

Princeton, N. J.—Jack Rooser, Princeton freshman, learned to swim last fall under compulsion. Now he is one of the speedsters of the class team and has defeated men of five years' experience.

POLAND TRIES TO UNTANGLE CHAOTIC LAWS ON DIVORCE.

Warsaw, March 23 (AP).—Poland's marriage and divorce laws are in a state of chaos, for which the government is seeking an orderly solution. A new marriage code is being drafted by an eminent Warsaw attorney.

Before the World War divorces were almost unknown in Poland, for most of the population was of the Catholic faith and adhered to the doctrine of indissolubility of marriage. But the civil confusion produced by the reclamation of the provinces which had been under German, Austrian and Russian rule, has produced a condition in which many persons moving from one part of Poland to another are uncertain whether they are legally married.

Some unhappy marriages are resolved by obtaining annulment from the Catholic Church. Others, unable to obtain release this way, change their church affiliation. The increased use of both means adds to the general confusion.

In the part of Poland which was formerly Russian, marriages are ratified solely by the churches, there being no civil ceremony. The Roman Catholic, the Orthodox, and the Protestant churches have power to dissolve marriages.

In Poznania, the Polish Corridor, and Silesia the German law obtains, namely, compulsory civil marriages and the dissolution of marriages by civil courts, with the right to contract another civil marriage.

Perhaps the most unsatisfactory feature of the marriage chaos is the possibility in Russian Poland for one party to the marriage to obtain a dissolution without the knowledge of the partner. For example, if a Catholic marries a Protestant in any non-Catholic Church, the Catholic consistory treats such a union as void and sometimes grants annulment to the Catholic spouse without bringing the matter to the attention of the non Catholic husband or wife. There have been instances where Catholic husbands have abandoned Protestant wives, married again, and then been compelled by the courts to pay alimony to the first partner.

SUNDAY ELECTION IN FASCIST ITALY IS MERE GESTURE.

By Hudson Hawley.

(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Rome, March 23 (AP).—The 455 honorables of the House of Representatives of the United States of America may well envy the 400 candidates for the new Italian Chamber of Deputies, who are up for endorsement tomorrow in a nation-wide plebiscite. For not only have the Italian legislators not had to spend a blessed cent to obtain their elections or reelections, but they have not made a single speech. And to top it all, they have no opponents!

They have made no promises to their constituents, because they represent no constituencies. The one, single slate of 400 names was picked by the Grand Council of the Fascist Party in much the same manner as some state delegations to a party's national convention are picked in America. They are candidates for the whole of Italy; and no matter from what provinces they come, the voters cannot "scratch" their names off the ballots and substitute others. The list of 400 is a pure "take-or-leave-it" proposition.

They have furthermore been spared the traditional necessity of kissing babies. Any candidate who tried to kiss all the babies in Italy, at the rate the population is increasing, would have some job, for there are more than 1,000 new little Italians, over and above the old ones deceased, for every day in the calendar year.

They have not promised postmasterships or Federal judgeships or any kind of patronage, because that is all in the hands of a power higher than theirs.

They can promise to their supporters only one thing—to remain true to the Fascist faith. They have had but one program and one platform, and that is summed up in the Number One name on their list: "Candidate—Mussolini, Benito, of Forli."

PUSSYFOOT JOHNSON VISITS PHILIPPINES

Manila, (AP).—The eighteenth amendment in the opinion of William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, applies to the Philippines, but is not likely to be made effective in the islands.

"There is no question, I guess, but what the eighteenth amendment does apply to the Philippines," he said. "There's a good deal of doubt whether the Volstead act applies. I don't think it does."

The noted advocate of world prohibition visited the islands recently during a tour of the far east in behalf of the cause for which he is working. A Philippine League Against Alcoholism, composed of both Americans and Filipinos, was organized during his stay here. The organizers intend to affiliate with the World League Against Alcoholism.

Johnson said that it was not probable that an attempt would be made to extend the eighteenth amendment to the Philippines because there is a general feeling that congress should not pass any laws that it is not compelled to concerning the internal affairs of the islands. He expressed a belief that it would not be wise "to cram prohibition down their necks" since Filipinos might resent it.

Incidentally, many Americans do not know that prohibition does not prevail in the Philippines. Frequently newly arrived travelers invite friends to their hotel room to have a drink of "real stuff" bought in Shanghai or Hongkong. Their innocence doesn't last long.

LENINGRAD DEFEATS BREAD SPECULATORS.

Leningrad, March 23 (AP).—In an effort to fight speculation in bread, the Leningrad Municipal Council has introduced a new system of distributing the staff of life to the local population.

All workers and employes are supplied through house committees with bread books. These give the holders the right to purchase in any bakery in the city enough loaves to meet the daily requirements of the family. The bread is sold at a standard price fixed by the trade department.

Traders, clergymen and all others classed as non-toilers, and who are therefore not in possession of such bread books, must pay higher prices for their bread.

The new system has already yielded results, in that about 200 tons of so-called "speculation" bread is being saved daily. The bread books make speculation and resale of bread extremely difficult.

FIRST RAINS TERRIFY CHILDREN OF DROUGHT.

Sydney, Australia, March 23 (AP).—The break of the prolonged drought in western Queensland, the northern state of Australia, has given children of six years of age experience of rain for the first time in their lives. It is related that as the drops clattered on the iron roofs of the homesteads they were terrified.

But to their parents the tattoo was the sweetest music in the world. They stood in the open, laughing and cheering and were drenched to the skin, just to feel once again the almost forgotten touch of water from the sky.

Britain Tightening Grasp On Country East Of Jordan

By ERNEST DAVIS
(Associated Press Correspondent.)

Jerusalem, March 23, (AP).—After considerable stress and difficulty, national parliamentary elections have been held for the first time in Trans-Jordania,—the British mandated land to the east of the Jordan river, and one result of the poll is likely to be a political agreement with Great Britain. Trans-Jordania, an "independent Amirate," is one and a half times the size of Belgium, and has a population of 300,000.

To Great Britain the Amirate means part of the route to India. Through a sort of corridor between Syria and The Nedjd, this route leads right up to the frontier of Iraq, another British mandate which, in turn, borders Persia.

It stands to reason, therefore, that Trans-Jordania, despite its "independent" status must be kept just as securely under control from London as the land west of the Jordan which, even though the two countries are administered by the same government in Jerusalem, today alone bears the official designation of "Palestine."

The agreement to be submitted by Amir Abdul Hamid to his parliament provides, among other things, that on questions of State finance, of the issue of new money or proposed changes in the Constitution, or the succession to the throne, the Amir shall "seek the advice" of England. He further undertakes to enact the necessary laws and regulations for carrying through Great Britain's international liabilities as affecting Trans-Jordania and to refrain from issuing or enforcing any laws calculated to interfere with the carrying out of these liabilities.

By the agreement Great Britain secures the right to maintain and mobilize military forces in Trans-Jordania. As regards the proclamation of martial law, the Amir is required to follow the advice of the British Resident, who himself is responsible to the British High Commissioner in Jerusalem. Furthermore the Amir must place the administration of the districts concerned in charge of such British officials or officers as England may designate.

No customs barriers may be erected between Palestine and Trans-Jordan without the consent of both countries. In the framing of laws designated to secure land, money or other property to the Amir, England must first be consulted.

One sided as this agreement may appear on the surface, the Amir and his advisers as well as the opposition party know that it really means the maintenance of the Amirate. The country is dependent upon British might for protection and if this protection were withdrawn three days would see the Wahibis, the fierce desert zealots of The Nedjd in Amman, the capital of Trans-Jordania.

Another consideration is the fact that the Amir, by heavy expenditures, plunged himself into deep debts. His private estates are being used to clear these and the upholding of even a sham independency is a matter of life and death to him for he is dependent for personal maintenance upon an allowance from the civil list.

It follows that the real issue in the elections for the new parliament was a decision as to which of two groups of political leaders was to hold the important offices. The "outs" who sought the power wielded by the cabinet headed by Hascan Chalid, the capable son of Abrul Hamid's court astrologer, have now seized upon allegations of predominating government influence at the polls as a basis for continuation of the opposition party. They assert the elections were invalid and have planned to press their claims at Geneva before the mandate commission of the League of Nations.

Designers Await Spring Approval Of Styles

Spring is fashion time for America as designers await public approval of their latest creations. Left: Betty Compson poses in a new polka dot pajama costume of blue. Center: Beige moire evening dress from Lord and Taylor showing a marked Spanish feeling. The Chanel fan is of beige tulle. Right: Coral reef is the name of the evening dress worn by Esther Ralston. It has a bolero jacket embroidered with brilliants and pearls.

A Time to Laugh

As for the general habit of joking, we do not mind trying to look solemn and impressive most of the time, but it does get tiresome on occasion. And we will still insist that the truth may get in through the door that humor opens when it finds all other doors closed.—New Outlook.

A Serious Thing; Love

Life is a love affair. . . . Young people in love are preparing to continue love affairs in the next generation. This love we laugh and weep about is the most serious thing in the world; we should give it all the intelligence we can command.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Wealth Cannot Buy

The things in life too dear for any wealth to buy—the love and confidence of men—will go, without the asking, to the man, perhaps poor and obscure, of strenuous purpose, fighting for the right and making always on the world the fine impression of a life true, brave and self-forgetful.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, March 23.—A stranger who has been visiting friends in Port Ewen for a few days was surprised to see the extreme narrowness and thoughtlessness of some of the residents of this place by disfiguring Salem street by throwing their empty cans and garbage on the side of the road open to view and to the disgust of strangers and annoyance of residents who are trying to lift the "morale" of the place. Isn't it possible for the health officer to get in touch with these dumpers and put a stop to this piece of lawlessness? Let us clean up Port Ewen commencing in our own back yards.

Church Notices for Sunday:

Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Frederick Baker, pastor. Sunday school, 10 a. m., Samuel P. Tinney, superintendent. Men's Bible class, 10 a. m., the Rev. F. G. Baker, teacher. All the men of the congregation are invited to join this class. Morning worship, 11, sermon subject, "Christ Enters the City." Epworth League, 6:30. Evening worship, 7:30, sermon subject, "The Lamp that Failed."

Church of the Presentation, the Rev. Martin J. Leddy, rector. Mass 7:30-10 a. m. Sunday school, 11 a. m.

Intermediate Christian Endeavor service at 4 p. m., Sunday. Topic, "Letting Jesus be King of My Life." Text Matt. 21:1-17. All young people between the ages of 10-16 years are urged to attend the service. Everyone is invited to the Christian Endeavor luncheon at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Regular Christian Endeavor service at 6:30 p. m. Everyone welcome. Topic, "Making Jesus King." Text, Matt. 21:1-17. Leader, Miss Beatrice Van Vlierdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Houghtaling of Salem street are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. George Houghtaling and daughter, Emily, at Tannersville, N. Y.

Those who attended the missionary supper in the Reformed Church house, Friday evening were loud in their praises of the supper, the delicious menu and the most efficient service given by the waitresses. Those who failed to be there were the losers. The Rev. John J. DeBoer gave a most interesting talk on the mission life in India.

There was a large attendance at the card party given under the auspices of the P.-T.A. Friday evening in Pythian Hall. The committee in charge wish to thank all those who helped in any way to make the party a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Reynolds of Hamilton stret have purchased a residence in West Hurley and have moved into their new home. The people of Port Ewen are very sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds as they were kind neighbors and good citizens.

Wattle Vs. Mimosa

There are about 450 species of acacia which grow in the warmer regions of the globe. Various Australian species are known as "wattle" and are closely allied to the "mimosa" of America.

A Card of Thanks.

To the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church of Shokan, N. Y.,
I extend to one and all my sincere thanks and appreciation for the basket of fruit presented to me as a token of love and honor in my infirmity during all winter shut in.
Love and its affection,
Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love,
The fellowship of kindred minds,
Is like to that above.

PREPARATIONS FOR UNION SERVICE GOOD FRIDAY

The final rehearsal of the choirs of the downtown and Port Ewen churches who will participate in the Good Friday afternoon service to be held at Redeemer Lutheran Church on Good Friday from 1:15 to 3 p. m., will take place on Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock at Redeemer Church.

The first half of the Good Friday service will consist of a meditation on the Seven Words From the Cross. Seven pastors will speak for four minutes each. A feature of this part will be chime solos between the addresses.

The second part of the service will consist of the singing of Stainer's "Crucifixion" by a vested choir of 30 or more voices. The soloists will be Joseph Crain, tenor; Harry Clearwater, bass; Raymond DuBois, bass. Among those whod will sing in the chorus are Miss Spink, Mrs. Jeannette Williams, Mrs. O. Brandorff, Leonard Stine, Miss Ethel Schlecht, Mrs. Inez Beuley. The words of the cantata will be distributed to the congregation. Art cover programs showing the order of service are being prepared.

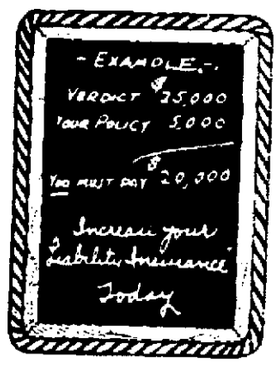
Don't Gamble With Automobile Insurance



Large judgments are the rule in Automobile Personal Injury cases. Verdicts of $20,000 to $50,000 are not unusual.

A motorist who does not carry Adequate and Dependable Automobile Liability Insurance may some day be compelled to give up his car,—assign his savings, mortgage his home, and perhaps even be forced into Bankruptcy.

Sixty Women To Seek Seats In Parliment

Artistic Welfare League Minstrel

The Artistic Welfare League minstrel show to be staged by employes of Jacobson's shirt factory and friends of the league at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, April 8 and 9, promises to be one of the best amateur shows ever staged in this city.

Rehearsals are progressing with great promise under the direction of Eddie Barton, veteran minstrel man, who has arranged the entire show. He expects to have some real novelties to offer those who patronize the welfare minstrel.

Those who have already signed to take part in the minstrel are as follows: The Misses Genevieve Davis, Lillian E. Peller, Eleanor Marks, Helen Baker, Agnes Peden, Helen Thompson, Rose Roux, Mary Cassell, Marie Schussler, Evelyn Curran, Helen Short, Marie Ulrich, Lillian Curran, Viola Mower, Victoria Mower, Evelyn Ellsworth and L. BYRD ANTARCTIC DISCOVERY MAY CAUSE OWNERSHIP ROW

Formation of International Arbitration Board to Settle Claims Probable.

Washington.—Commander Richard Byrd's discoveries in the Antarctic region may lead eventually to the creation of an international arbitration commission to settle the question of just how far ownership is established for a nation by the setting up of its flag in an uninhabited country.

This was indicated here following the announcement that Commander Byrd claimed a vast new territory in the Antartic for the United States.

Records in the State department left the question hazy, as international law cited was to the effect that discovery such as Commander Byrd's establishes a claim for his nation, but not a permanent right to the country.

"How far the mere discovery of a territory which is either unsettled or settled only by savages gives a right to it," one authority declared, "is a question which neither the law nor the usages of nations has yet definitely settled."

But another source asserted that "the ground taken by the British government, that a discovery made by a private individual in the prosecution of a private enterprise gives no right," cannot be allowed.

"There is nothing," this authority continued, "to support it, either in reason or in the law and usage of nations. To say the least, if a discovery so made confers no right it prevents any other nation from acquiring a right by subsequent discovery, although made under the authority of the government and with an express view to that object."

It was said unofficially that if the question of the validity of Commander Byrd's claim to the land for the United States did arise it probably would be settled by an international arbitration commission.

Though the Antarctic generally is looked upon as a land of little value, it might be used as a base for meteorological investigations.

Once a discovery long considered as unimportant suddenly assumed large proportions—the island of South Georgia, rarely thought of as a source of revenue, far in the south Atlantic, but during the World war it was "rediscovered" from another standpoint as a base for whaling expeditions.

Rescue Crews Find 2 More Men

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 23 (AP).—Rescue crews, exploring the explosion-wrecked Kinloch mine, today ceased work when two missing men they were searching for were found alive and well. The death list will stand at 46, officials of the Valley Camp Coal Company announced. Forty-five bodies have been recovered, and the body of one victim, Arnold Breeding, is buried in wreckage and is under water at the foot of the main slope. Efforts were to be made later in the day to drain the slope, remove the wreckage, and recover the body.

The body of an unidentified miner, held at the temporary morgue since yesterday, was identified as Peter Karatovich.

The two men reported missing were found in their boarding houses in the nearby village of Kinloch.

Four fires broke out in the mine early today. Rescuers said the fires had been smouldering since the explosion, and that when currents of fresh air struck them, they blazed up. Three were extinguished quickly and the fourth was brought under control with little trouble.

Bill to Punish Autoists Who Kill

Albany, March 23 (AP).—In an effort to procure convictions by juries for the accidental killing of pedestrians by automobilists, the State Crime Commission introduced in the legislature today a bill designed to add to the penal statutes the crime of "involuntary homicide".

The sponsors of the bill said it had been found almost impossible to procure convictions on manslaughter charges in the cases of deaths resulting from reckless driving. The proposed amendment would allow a homicide charge to be placed against a person for death caused "not wilfully" and would provide for imprisonment of not more than seven years or a fine of not more than $2,000, or both.

No person would be convicted of involuntary homicide unless the death of the person alleged to have been killed and the fact of killing by the defendant were established as independent facts, the former by direct proof and the latter beyond a reasonable doubt.

Aviation Season Opens Sunday

The aviation season in Kingston will open Sunday when Fred H. Brohan and Harper Mollineaux of the Kingston Airways, will be at their flying field on the Powell farm just across the Esopus creek bridge. After a most successful season last year during which many hundreds of trips were made over Kingston and surrounding territory the field was closed for the winter months. Sunday there will be a plane at the field to take up passengers and about April 1 there will be planes stationed here at all times for passenger and commercial flying.

Later in the season they intend to put on an air meet with a number of planes participating. The field, which was graded last season and placed in excellent condition, will be further improved this year.

NEW TESTIMONY IN PATRONAGE PROBE.

Washington, March 23 (AP).—Testimony that Senator Blease, Democrat, South Carolina, had contributed $500 to the organization headed by Joseph W. Tolbert, Republican national committeeman for the state, and that while Governor Blease pardoned two of Tolbert's cousins, was laid before the Senate patronage committee today by W. F. Brown, Charleston, S. C., contractor.

Brown told the committee that in June, 1921, Tolbert advised him that he "wanted Blease for federal district attorney; that Blease had contributed liberally" to his campaign funds and "had given $500".

"Tolbert further said," Brown declared, "that Blease while governor, had pardoned two of his cousins, one of whom, a man named Henderson, was postmaster at North Charleston." He did not say what the charges against the men were.

For Your Profit

YOUR effectiveness depends largely on your eyes—so do your good spirits.
It's a real economy to have your eyes perfectly equipped, and it's a profitable investment as well. Untiring efforts have been spent in the advancement of a truer and safer double vision lens. The new bifocal "UNI-VIS" is evidence of this.

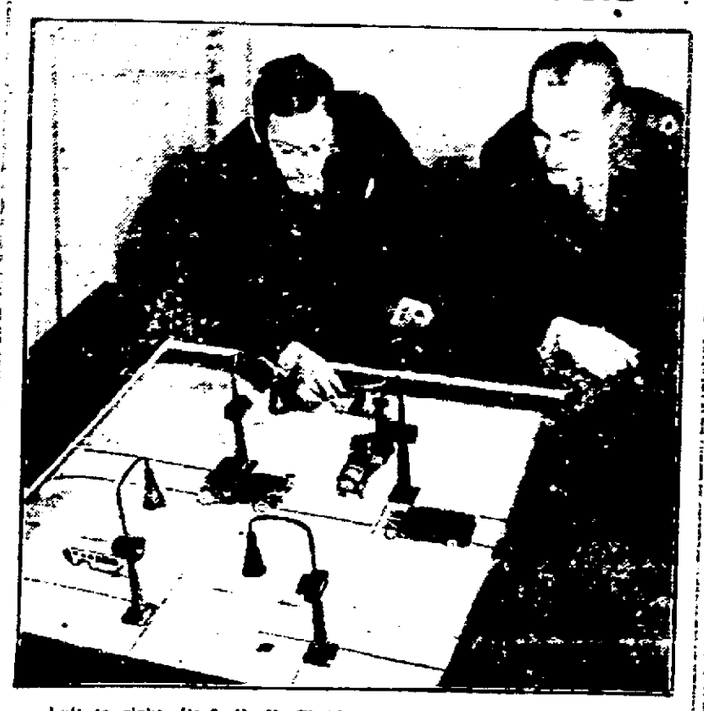
ELIMINATE DELAYS BY "ELECTRIC ETE"



Left to right, Prof. H. H. Sheldon of New York university's physics department and Dr. Phillips Thomas of the Westinghouse Electric company, watching a demonstration of a new light sensitive device, before the members of the Electrical society at the Engineering Societies' building. It is expected that unnecessary traffic delays, caused by the flashing of a red light or "stop" signal on a main thoroughfare at times when no vehicles are waiting to cross the intersection may be done away with forever. The new system gives motorists a green signal continuously until a car on the cross street comes within a short distance of the intersection, at which time the lights automatically revert to a prearranged "set" program operation. The automatic feature of the system is made possible by a new application of the photo-electric cell, or "electric eye" which literally "sees" automobiles or other vehicles and regulates the signals accordingly.

HIGHWAY MARKERS NEED OF CITIES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Why aren't the standard route markers of the United States highway system more generally erected in cities through which the route passes?" a cross-continent motorist recently asked the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. "I started from the western coast last summer over one of the U. S. routes and had no trouble in following the road across the country," he explained, "except when it crossed the larger cities. There were no markers to indicate when I was on the route or when I was off it. It is through the cities that we motorists are most likely to get off the route, especially at five-point intersections," he asserted.

Not Under State Control.

Officials of the bureau explained that the route markers in the various states were erected by the state highway departments only upon the highways under their jurisdiction; that city streets, which are connecting links, are under the jurisdiction of municipal authorities, and that the erection of the markers within city limits is up to the city officials.

Some Cities Erect Markers.

A few cities have recognized this need of the motorist, the bureau says, and have erected the standard markers on their streets.

Since the standard route markers and danger and caution signs were adopted in 1925 for use on the United States highway system, 28 states have completed the marking of the system within their borders and under their jurisdictions, eight states have marked from 75 to 99 per cent of their roads, and four states have marked from 50 to 75 per cent.

Water Isn't Especially Good for Spare Tires

With tires carried on the side, the rogue of the day, it may be appropriate to make a suggestion for an improvement in fender wells.

Most owners note the way the wells catch dirt on the under side, and not a few of them appreciate that constant scraping and cleaning of these parts will result in the metal getting rather thin at these points. But how many realize that fender wells tend to wear out from the upper side because of water remaining in the wells?

This water isn't especially good for the spare tires, either. Accordingly, some means should be provided whereby it could be drained off.

Missouri Making Study of Automobile Crashes

A study of the automobile accidents in Missouri in a recent month revealed 1,219 accidents. Ten were caused by cars with no drivers; 33 were cars driven by intoxicated drivers; 47 were caused through losing control of the car; defective brakes caused 10; tire blowouts, 11; skidding, 29; 15 were caused by "the other fellow," who forced them into ditches; 19 were caused by trying to pass another car; 15 resulted from drivers falling asleep at the wheel. One car was struck by an airplane and one driver was stung by a bee.

Following Stars

Wise men are always doing what the Magi in the Gospel story did. They are always following stars. . . . It is this following of starlike ideals, ideals of truth, ideals of honor, ideals of duty, which invests our common life with dignity and meaning.

Big Motor Business

The following key-points are taken from the forecast made by Roy D. Chapin, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce:

1. Automotive employment in America will total 4,000,000.
2. Production will be on new high levels, buying raw materials in larger quantities than ever before.
3. Pent up demand for transport, held back in 1928, will keep sales active throughout 1929.
4. Highway building on all continents creates new transport needs.

Foreign Matter Sticks at "Neck of the Bottle"

The "neck of the bottle" in an automobile radiator is at the top of the cooling fins or tubes. Any foreign matter that floats around with the water always gets stuck at this point and the result is retarded circulation and a tendency for the motor to overheat.

Ordinary flushing will not remove serious obstructions. But you can get them out by the simple method shown.

Incision in Radiator, After the Shell Is Removed, Gives Access to Obstructing Particles.

Remove the radiator shell and with a sharp, strong knife make a curved incision. Then fold out the flap thus formed. Pick out the obstructions with a pointed instrument, push the flap back in place and solder it. Radiators are made of thin sheet brass so this is easier than it looks.—Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

Test the oil level every time the tank is filled with gasoline.

• • •

Now if some genius will devise a way to refuel automobiles while in motion the life of the speeder will be complete.

• • •

A driver in California sustained severe injury as a result of an automobile accident. Police arrested the ex-pugilist in the other car.

• • •

When your car fails to complete a turn in a space that seems wide enough for it, maybe you failed to start the turn with the wheels cut as sharply as possible.

• • •

If the water in the radiator needs changing it is best to drain and flush it immediately after a long run. The sediment will still be circulating and it will clean out much more thoroughly.

• • •

Scientists are trying to establish what was man's first conquest of space, but his greatest conquest of space was probably the distance he jumped when he saw a car about to hit him.

Road Bore Trouble

A 73-mile stretch of concrete road, recently completed between Denver and Colorado Springs, Colo., has not a single railroad grade crossing in its entire length. Formerly there were 13 such crossings on this route.

News from the World on Wheels

The entire passenger car manufacturing facilities of the Chrysler Motors plant in Highland Park at Detroit has been taken over for the exclusive production of the De Soto Six, according to an announcement this week by company officials. The big Highland Park plant is built on a site covering an area of more than 60 acres. One of the most complete manufacturing institutions in the industry, it has been used in the past for building other Chrysler Motors products as well as the De Soto Six. The million and three-quarters feet of floor space in Highland Park has now been set aside for De Soto in anticipation of the heavy volume of sales predicted for the coming year by dealers and officials of the company. Approximately 1,500,000 feet is used exclusively for manufacturing. The remainder is devoted to offices.

"Ride 'em, cowboy!" That famous cry of the western rodeos is decidedly appropriate when a test driver is taking an Oldsmobile over the bumps at the General Motors proving ground to show just how good the spring design and construction is and how well the hydraulic shock absorbers operate. The "bumps" are no accident nor are they just a rough piece of corduroy formed by weather and soil conditions. Instead they are the bumpiest bumps skilled engineers could devise and expert workmen construct. There is a substantial reason why time, care and money have been spent in building what might be termed the worst piece of road in the world. The engineers can conceive of no better way to learn how car springs, hydraulic shock absorbers, frame and body will withstand hard usage over bad roads than to have an Oldsmobile driven over the worst roads imaginable. So the "worst road" was constructed at the proving ground for the purpose of these tests.

JANUARY AND FEBRUARY SALES 100% AHEAD OF LAST YEAR.

STARTING with its first presentation to America's motorists, the new Superior Whippet has aroused an ever-growing tide of public enthusiasm. In January and February, sales showed a gain of more than 100% over sales for the corresponding months of 1928. This is dramatic proof of the new Superior Whippet's tremendous popular acceptance as the finest value ever offered a Four or light Six driver.

You will readily understand such remarkable success when you see and drive the car. An inspection reveals the new Superior Whippet's beauty of design and tasteful refinement of detail.

A demonstration reveals higher speed, faster pick-up and greater power, together with ease of control and comfortable riding qualities never before associated with such an inexpensive car.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Clinton Chapter, No. 445, Order of the Eastern Star, fittingly celebrated the twentieth anniversary of its organization at Masonic Hall, Wall street, Friday night, over two hundred and fifty members being present. The room was artistically decorated for the occasion and presented the appearances of a flower garden. After the opening ceremonies Miss Alice M. Scardefield, worthy matron, welcomed the charter members and presented them with life membership certificates as an expression of the esteem in which Clinton Chapter holds those who started the chapter, which is today the largest chapter in the district of Greene-Ulster. Twenty-four members organized Clinton Chapter on March 26, 1909, ten of whom are still members, and five of these were present Friday night to receive life memberships, Miss Grace V. Merritt, Mrs. Edith Everett, Miss Irene Lampman, Mrs. Minard and Miss Cara Hasbrouck. A floral ceremony was conferred upon the charter members, during which Mrs. Elizabeth Kieffer very beautifully sang "Dawning." The guests of the evening were Mrs. Suzanne E. Decker of Highland, who was the deputy who presented the charter to the chapter; Mrs. Lillian B. Hahne, who as the worthy matron of Kingston Chapter in 1909, exemplified the work at the organization of the chapter, and Miss Marguerite Lencke, the present matron of Kingston Chapter, the mother of Clinton Chapter. All the speakers spoke in a reminiscent strain and congratulated Clinton Chapter on its marvelous success. A most delightful program was rendered. Mrs. Elizabeth Kieffer very beautifully sang "Homeing"; Miss Muriel Obermann gave selections on the violin and Miss June Watson gave piano solos, all of whom delighted the audience. After the meeting a banquet was served, after which Malzenfelder played for dancing.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 23 (AP).—Heavy liquidation developed in today's stock market, carrying scores of issues down 2 to 7 points, in reflection of the uneasiness created by the announcement that the Federal Board was meeting again in Washington. Fears that the board would take further action to restrict the volume of speculative credit led to an abandonment of pool activity and the lightening of many speculative accounts by small traders.

Stop-loss orders, which had been placed just below the market by nervous traders during the past week, were touched off in large volume. Short selling was more aggressive.

Motors were liquidated rather freely on reports that many dealers were over-stocked with cars, and that there had been a lessening demand for steel from automotive manufacturers.

International Telephone fell nearly 7 points, Abraham and Straus 5¾, Curtiss Aeronautic 5 and Russia Insurance, Vanadium Steel, Anaconda Copper and General Electric lost 4 points or more.

Radio, National Cash Register, Goodyear Rubber, Greene Cananea Copper, Canadian Pacific, Shattuck, General Railway Signal and Wright Aeronautical slipped 3 to 4 points, and the long list of 2-point declines included U. S. Steel Common, Kennecott, National Lead, Westinghouse Electric, Allis Chalmers, American Express, DuPont, International Combustion, Montgomery Ward and Calumet and Arizona. U. S. Steel Common sold 8 points below the high price established Tuesday.

The closing was weak. Sales approximated 2,000,000 shares.

Fishermen's Mittens

A strange custom of New England coast winter fishermen is to soak their thick, woolen mittens in the sea and wring them out as dry as possible before putting them on. They say their hands keep much warmer than if they don the mittens when dry.

Aw, Gowan!

It is claimed in America that a sheep is learning to talk. London Opinion understands that the animal is being taught simple words and has already mastered the first syllable of "banana."

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, March 23 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—Despite limited arrivals of western New York apples the market today was very dull owing to poor demand, especially on fruit which showed scald or otherwise was unattractive in quality. Cold storage holdings of apples March 1 for the entire country were 1,125,000 barrels, 7,973,000 boxes and 2,175,000 bushel baskets. Combined holdings under refrigeration were about 22 per cent heavier than a year ago but 5 per cent below average supply. Supply of barreled apples in cold storage was one-third greater than last spring, but was 43 per cent below the average for March 1.

Florida tomato prices further advanced. A large volume of the supply was green and quality was only fair. Demand was fairly active. Fancy pack of 144 tomatoes in carriers of six-four quart baskets brought from $3.00-$6.00. The choice pack of 180 tomatoes realized from $2.00-$4.50.

Prices on new crop potatoes from Florida declined. Arrivals were more liberal and demand was less active. Wholesale business of double headed barrels of No. 1 Spaulding rose was transacted principally at $7 while the No. 2 stock changed hands at $4.50. Florida new crop potato shipments increased last week to 160 cars.

Local Death Record

Emily Elliott, daughter of the late Howard W. Elliott, and wife of Eben Blakeslee, died in Brooklyn Monday. The remains were brought here and interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery on Thursday.

Thomas D. Field died Friday at his home on Russell street, Saugerties, aged 67 years. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Brown of Saugerties and Miss Corabelle Field of Miami, Florida; a son, Thomas, of Poughkeepsie; two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Minor and Mrs. Eva Early of Philadelphia, Pa.; and a brother, George Field, of Newburgh. Funeral services from the late home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with interment in Mountain View Cemetery.

The funeral of Captain Grant Lezalle, who died in the Albany City Hospital Tuesday afternoon, was held at Coxsackie, Friday. Burial was in Riverside. Captain Lezalle was born in Coxsackie, July 25, 1870, son of the late Charles and Catherine Moore Lezalle and has always lived in Coxsackie and had been a boatman for thirty-eight years. He is survived by his wife, Grace Briggs Lezalle, a daughter, Bessie, and a son, Grant, Jr., and grandson Grant 3rd of Coxsackie and a brother Nelson, of Kingston. Captain Lezalle was commander of the Peter Stuyvesant of the Hudson Day Line fleet of steamers.

Frank Morse Smith, a former resident of Kingston but for many years a resident of Brooklyn, where he was engaged in the chemical business on an extensive scale, died at his home, 40 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn, Friday. He was a brother of Kate L. Smith, widow of VonBeck Canfield of 105 Fair street, this city, and a brother of the late Wallace H. Smith, who for a number of years was clerk for Supreme Court Justice Theodoric R. Westbrook. Deceased is also survived by his wife, Sarah L. Magaw Smith, and three children, Mrs. Matilda S. Lyons, Henry V. B. Smith and Arrietta H. Smith. Funeral services at the late home 40 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock with private burial.

David Whitaker, a highly respected resident of Saugerties, was found strangled to death in the attic of his home on Livingston street, in that village Friday morning. Mr. Whitaker, who was in the 82nd year of his age, was brooding for several days over his wife's illness and also his own and was acting peculiarly about his home. About 10:30 o'clock Friday morning Mrs. Whitaker detected the absence of her husband and began making a search. Going into the attic she made the discovery of his death. He was seated on the edge of a trunk with a rope drawn taut about his neck. Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, David, of Brooklyn, and William, of Saugerties. Mr. Whitaker was a native of Glasco and had been living a retired life for a number of years.

Limitless Variety of Nature Seen at Doorway

We are up and away nowadays, speeding fast for change; yet in meadows near my own doorway I have learned more of the limitless variety of nature than I have learned in following marvels very far. The trees that I know best are never twice the same, because of the way of the wind with their leaves, of the sun upon them, of their noonday shining and their evening shadow. Can the sea with its waves give more of change than a June meadow of long grass, where the wind has its way through a long afternoon? Where can you find beauty that will surpass these green waves, rising, falling, breaking, strewn with blossoms of buttercup, daisy, and red clover? The salt ocean has no such fragrance as that which comes from hay and clover and sweet grass newly shorn. Have you ever watched the winds and tides in fields of wheat and rye, the long golden waves, the swift shadow of bird wings across them, and, just above, against the sky, slow-sailing white clouds that drift and drift in summer seas of dim blue haze?—Margaret Sherwood, in "Familiar Ways."

Boy Scout Cottage Swept From Bluff, Several Drowned

Lenoir City, Tenn., March 23 (AP).—A party seeking to aid a troop of 28 Boy Scouts whose cottage was swept from a bluff on White Creek near Rockwood, Tenn., early today, telephoned to officials here that several of the boys were drowned but that others could be seen clinging to trees and floating debris in the flooded streams.

Cottage Swirled Down Stream

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 23 (AP).—A cottage in which twenty-eight Boy Scouts were camping near Rockwood, Tenn., was washed from its foundation and sent swirling down a swollen stream today by flood waters.

Reports reaching here were that residents of the section heard the screams of the boys in the cottage.

The camp is about 70 miles north of here in White Creek, normally a small stream. The cloudburst which swelled the creek to a dangerous size and swept away the cottage also washed out highway bridges and hampered telephone and telegraphic communication making it impossible to confirm reports.

Another report, which was received at Knoxville, was that the town of Coal Creek, Tenn., was "wiped out" by the cloudburst.

About the Folks

Theodore Brink of Lake Katrine is registered at the Alexander Hotel, St. Petersburg, Florida.

A daughter, Alberta Carol, has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Horace Woolsey of 246 Elmendorf street.

Mrs. Caroline Broadie, who was on an extended stay in New York city and Forest Hills Gardens, L. I., has returned home.

Miss Helen Levy, who for a long time was employed in the store of the late Joseph Block, downtown, is now with the Paris Milliners on Wall street.

Florence Fisher of 22 Mary's avenue is satisfactorily recovering from an operation for appendicitis performed by Mr. Mark O'Meara at the Benedictine Hospital.

Mildred Haas, Edith Peters and Florence Topp will be confirmed in a private confirmation service Sunday afternoon in Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Mrs. C. L. Smith of 69 Henry street is entertaining the Misses Margaret Furlong and Vivian Dillon of Schenectady, who are spending their Easter vacation here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Newkirk, who have been living at Shepheard's Hotel, Cairo, Egypt, for some time, were entertained at the Cairo Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of Cairo. Mrs. Miller before her marriage was Miss Ellnor Chipp, daughter of the late Howard Chipp, of this city. She has made Egypt her home for the past two years.

Lighting the Train's Exterior

After some tests and experimentation, the Indian government is about to make use of a system by which the trains are lighted on the exterior for the purpose of intensifying the illumination at country stations as a safeguard against trespassers. Several lights are placed on either side of each car and these are automatically switched on when the train is running below a certain speed and off again when the prescribed limit is exceeded. Thus the lights are on as the train slows down to enter or pass a station, but on the road the presence of the lights is not essential.

A Wet Watch Spring

A certain Frenchman was describing an unfortunate occurrence in his life: "My watch had dropped into the sea. We were in Greenland at the time. I dove down and recovered my watch, but the ice had closed up again. Impossible to get through; to go round would have taken too long! I shouted with the voice of a Stentor: "Throw me a saw." They threw me one. I sawed my way out through the ice, but the sawdust dropped into my eyes and I perished."

Wood Turns to Agate

Next time you come across a petrified tree it may interest you to know that in a few centuries more it will become agate from which the jewelry and marbles of another age may be made. Up to a few centuries ago, notes The Farm Journal, this woodstone was highly prized as a magic charm, and was believed to be able to do everything from stopping the flow of blood to calming a hurricane.

It is wasteful to use large watt bulbs in small rooms.

Soiled lamps use the same power and give less light than clean ones.

For a single lamp in a room 40 watts will serve the greatest number of conditions.

Avoid waste and possible fires by disconnecting toasters, heaters and all electric attachments when not in use.

When using electric stoves and cooking devices always follow the manufacturer's directions and observe the usual rules for saving heat.

On chandeliers where two or more lights are used 25-watt lamps give better light and are more economical because all are not always used at one time.

Never wash an electric bulb, because a drop of water penetrating the interior of the bulb will destroy its power. Just wipe bulbs with a damp cloth.

General Serrail Dies In Paris

Was One-Time Defender of Verdun—As High Commissioner in Syria He Shelled Part of Damascus During Arab Revolt.

Paris, March 23 (AP).—General Maurice Emmanuel Sarrail, one-time "defender of Verdun" and former high commissioner in Syria, died today at the age of 72.

General Sarrail, who commanded the Third French army at the first battle of the Marne and was decorated with the military medal for his courage and tenacity in holding Verdun and the heights of the Meuse, died just three days after his chief, Marshal Foch.

The general had been ill for three weeks suffering from liver trouble which became serious on the very day that Foch died.

Sarrail died quietly with his wife at his bedside.

General Sarrail perhaps was best known as "the man who bombarded Damascus," and for his share in the Druse rebellion.

His record before Verdun at the head of the Third French Army during the Battle of the Marne and in 1917 as commander-in-chief of the Allied troops in the Balkans was overshadowed before the world at large by his activities as French High Commissioner to Syria in 1925. Even in France people spoke of him as "Sarrail of Damascus."

He acquired a liking for the political life while military commander of the Chamber of Deputies from 1902 to 1904. Since then he was prominent in the councils of the radical party. A staunch man of the "lefts," he was twice candidate for parliament and defeated both times. He was placed on the retired list as a general of division by the nationalist government of Clemenceau in 1918.

Refused to Attend Ceremony.

When the radical party came into power with Herriot in 1924, Sarrail was appointed High Commissioner to Syria, replacing General Weygand, whose policies were unacceptable to the radicals. The new High Commissioner, a free thinker, refused to attend the religious ceremony given in his honor, at Beirut by the Catholic clergy of Syria and thereby incurred the enmity of that party.

Catholics called to high posts and decorated with the cravat of the Legion of Honor by Weygand were flung into jail by his successor and in some instances the cravat of the Legion of Honor around their necks was replaced by a rope of hemp as they swung from the scaffolds. Syria soon was in turmoil, which developed into rebellion, the bombardment of Damascus, and Sarrail's retirement.

But his activities in politics and his close association with former Premier Caillaux, who was under suspicion of trying to overthrow the republican regime at that time, caused Sarrail to be sent to the Balkans as commander-in-chief of the Allied troops in December, 1916.

Rebellion in Syria.

As High Commissioner of Syria, General Sarrail's refusal to receive the delegates of the Druses, asking for the removal of the governor of their province, sent that warlike tribe into open rebellion. Then came the disaster to the column of General Michaud marching upon Soueida, when the French lost more than 2,000 killed, and the entire French army dispersed.

Sarrail had made his headquarters in Damascus and tried to smooth over the difficulties with the Arabs by diplomacy. When the city went on open rebellion during his absence, the Commissioner upon his return, immediately gave orders to shell the quarter held by the rebels. The bombardment lasted nearly two days. The rebels claimed more than 500, including women and children, were killed. Sarrail's official reports placed the dead at 76.

The bombardment created a sensation. Meanwhile Herriot had been overthrown and Premier Briand, who had replaced him, recalled Sarrail. The latter appeared before the military committee of the Chamber and presented his own defense. No action was taken and since then Sarrail lived in retirement.

Graphic Outlines of History

THE ALAMO, SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS

It was built by the Franciscan Friars and later converted into a fort, and was the scene of the massacre of a group of Americans by Santa Anna, a Mexican rebellionist. "Remember the Alamo," was the war cry of "Sam" Houston and his men when he completely routed the Mexican army. The beauty, dignity, and quiet simplicity of the ceremony is only possible with such complete facilities as our service affords.

County Basketball Tournament at Y. M. C. A.

In the Ulster County Basketball Tournament which is being held at the Y. M. C. A. court five out of the fifteen games scheduled were played Friday afternoon and night. In the first game of the afternoon Highland gave Marlborough a trimming, 36 to 19. It was an easy victory for the Highland team. The score at half time of this battle was Highland, 15; Marlborough, 5.

The second game of the afternoon was taken by Ellenville from the New Paltz High School by a score of 23 to 12. The score at the end of the first half was 16 to 4 in Ellenville's favor. The Ellenville team was also the winners of the first game of the evening. They took over Highland, 30 to 12. The mountain team held the upper hand at half time, 17 to 4.

The second game of the evening was a nip and tuck battle. Although Kerhonkson was in the leading position at the end of the opening session, 17 to 13, Saugerties out-scored them in the final period to take the contest, 31 to 27.

New Paltz gave Saugerties a good run in the final game of the night. Saugerties was the winner, 31 to 20. The score at half time was 13 to 7 in the winner's favor. The third quarter saw New Paltz stage a scoring rally and they came within a point or two of their opponent's lead but Saugerties at this point also began to find the hoop frequently, taking up the lead by a safe margin.

Today there will be ten games played at the "Y" court.

Highland Team Bows to Slotes

Highland Hose Company missed out on a good chance to win the honors in the Mid-Hudson Valley Basketball League by losing to Slotes of Poughkeepsie, 26-32, at Smith's Hall, Highland, Friday night. The Ulsterites, however, still have a chance to cop the pennant.

Ragged foul shooting lost for Highland Friday night. The Ulster men were able to make good on only six tries out of 19 chances from the free throw line. Slotes boosted their eight field baskets by tossing 16 fouls through the hoops. The biggest scoring session of the Poughkeepsie team came within the last ten minutes of play.

Maury McDermott, Highland's center was the highest individual scorer of the game with five fields and three fouls to his credit. Dratch and Silvernail with 12 and 11 points respectively were highest scorers for Slotes.

Highland meets Beacon tonight at the latter's court. A win for the Ulster county team will bring it the league honors, but should the firemen lost again tonight there will be a tie for first place.

Cambridge Again Defeats Oxford

Scores Sixth Consecutive Victory in 81st Annual Boat Race—Cross Finish Line Seven Full Lengths Ahead of Rivals.

Putney-on-Thames, England, March 23 (AP).—Cambridge, with a veteran aggregation of oarsmen, scored its sixth consecutive victory over Oxford in the 81st annual boat race between the two famous English universities today.

The Cambridge crew, taking an early lead, crossed the finish line seven full lengths ahead of their rivals from the Isis.

Cambridge's veterans, pulling a strong and steady stroke, jumped into a half-length lead at the end of the first half mile, increased this advantage to three quarters of a length at the mile and then pulled away from their rivals during the rest of the struggle.

The winners covered the four miles and a quarter in 19 minutes and 24 seconds, well behind the record of 18:29 set by Oxford in 1911.

Although Cambridge won by a decisive margin, the Oxford crew, outweighed five pounds to the man, put up a gallant battle throughout the first half of the race.

Cambridge had jumped into a two-length lead at the two-mile mark when the Oxford stroke boosted the beat. Slowly the dark blue shell crept up, cutting down Cambridge's lead. The spurt was short-lived, however, and another quarter mile of rowing saw Cambridge increase its advantage to five lengths. The lead had grown two lengths at the finish line.

The struggle today was the eighty-first between the rival universities since 1829, and the victory of the Light Blue evened the score of a century on the river at forty victories each. The race of 1877 resulted in a dead heat.

At the finish the whole Oxford crew with the exception of the No. 5 man collapsed. The victorious Cambridge oarsmen, however, finished in fine condition.

Anger Worth While

A little anger now and then is relished by the best and simplest of men, especially if it takes the form of indignation over wrongs, the unfairness, meanness of others. Thus Charles Mckens was in a perpetually indignant state of mind over the wrongs of the poor, and not only the poor but Dickens benefited from it.

Big Improvement In Cleveland Team

New Orleans, March 23 (AP).—Baseball-wise railbirds who compare the Cleveland Indians of 1929 with the 1928 edition declare the club has been improved more than any outfit in the American League. However, this diagnosis, if correct, will not necessarily insure the Redskins a high place in baseball, for they had more room for improvement than most of the other clubs.

There seems no reasonable doubt that Manager Roger Peckinpaugh's re-made team will offer a far bolder front than he was able to present last season. His infield has been strengthened by the addition of the little but rugged Jackie Tavener and transfer of Joey Sewell to third base, and a much needed punch in the outfield has been supplied by the addition of two promising recruits and an established star. Dick Porter and Earl Averill have shown indications of living up to their minor league reputations and Bib Falk, the former Chicago White Sox player, can swap base hits with most of the major league batsmen.

No radical changes have been made in the battery forces, but Jim Zinn, who has pitched good ball for several years in A.A. baseball, will have a chance to see if he can do half as well higher up.

Luke Sewell, junior of the famous Sewell brothers, and Glenn Myatt will do the catching, with Hartley, a veteran who is listed as a coach, acting as emergency relief unless General Manager Billy Evans finds a likely unattached.

Zinn and Ken Holloway, late of Detroit, seem to be the best of the new pitchers on the staff, but Wesley Ferrell, who was farmed to Terre Haute, is back, evidently to stay with an even better fast ball than he had last spring. Verne Underhill, another farm hand, probably will make the grade this time.

Willis Hudlin, Walter Miller, Joe Shaute, George Grant, Mel Harder and John Miljus are retained from the 1928 staff. Miller has shown decided improvement over his previous performances, and Hudlin has worked long and hard at a control machine. He has a target set up in right field of the Pelicans' ball park where the Indians train, and spends hours throwing at it. If he gets control he is expected to take his place beside the leading pitchers of the league. Shaute, the big lefthander, has a brand new delivery which may increase his effectiveness. He pulls the ball out of his hip pocket much on the order of Earl Moore, the famous Pirate pitcher of two decades ago.

Three-fourths of the infield is set. Joe Sewell, although he has never played third base, already is at home and seems to have conquered the queer angles a shortstop finds at a corner of the infield. Tavener, who gets as many extra base hits as singles in a year's work, will play shortstop with Carl Lind, the foolish play expert, at second base. Lew Fonseca and Johnny Hodapp are available for first base, with Fonseca the Portuguese song bird, having the call.

The infield fight in the Indian camp is for the reserve places. Ray Gardner, New Orleans shortstop, can field but his hitting remains in doubt. Johnny Burnett, big and fast, who is a product of the University of Florida, has made a good impression and may be kept as he is a versatile performer.

Porter and Averill seem destined to start the season in right and center as both have hit well in the spring. The clever Jamieson is in a contest with the hard-hitting Bib Falk for the other field. One will be an extra outfielder with Ed Morgan, the only right handed hitter in the first five outfielders.

Buffalo and Albany in Finals

Albany High School basketball team, which eliminated Kingston High in the opening round of the State High School Tournament at Syracuse Thursday, continued their drive for the championship on Friday night and defeated Syracuse Central High School, defending champions, by the score of 20 to 12.

The other semi-final match of the evening resulted in a win for Buffalo Masten Fosdick over Bay Shore, L. I., 26 to 16. Tonight Albany and Buffalo will battle it out for the championship. The game will be broadcast.

MOLVIN LOSES TO HALVERSON.

Charlie Molvin of this city lost to Ray Halverson at the Newburgh armory Friday night. The decision was an unpopular one, most of the fans thinking that the Kingston boy deserved at least a draw. Mickey McVeigh of Newburgh and Frankie LePerra of New York fought a draw in the main eight round event.

Veteran Infield Stars Rally To "Hot Corner"

This trio of high powered big leaguers is moving over where those grounders have to be grabbed before they get a chance to cool off.

By JAY B. VESSELS

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

New York, (AP).—Cutting down some of those drives that whiz past third base is a problem several major league clubs are trying to meet by drafting players from other infield positions.

The notable instances have been supplied by the Yankees, Indians and Cardinals. They have shifted three of the best infielders in baseball to the hot corner.

Mark Koenig moves over from shortstop for the Yankees. Frankie Frisch is due to shift from second for the Cardinals and Joe Sewell changes from shortstop for the Indians.

All three of these men consigned to the torrid zone are hitters and two of them have few equals as fielders. Frisch led the regular National League second basemen last year with a fielding average of .976, while Sewell topped the American League short fielders with a mark of .963.

Of the three Koenig made the worst showing afield, placing seventh among the regular shortstop with an average of .923. But Mark is a .300 hitter and he has an arm that can stand the strain of hard throws clear across the diamond.

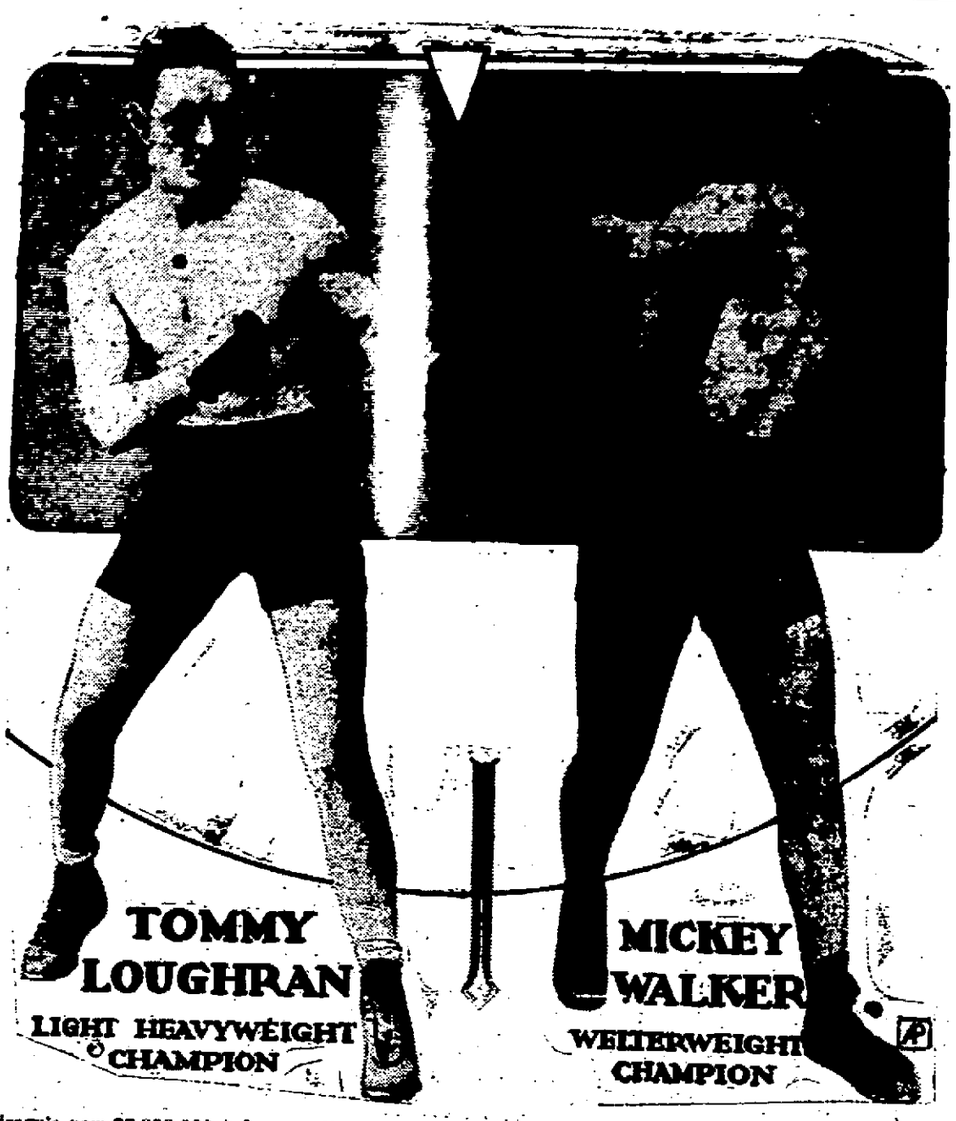
The change was inevitable for Koenig as the Yankees dropped Joe Dugan, their old third base standby, and had Lyn Lary, Pacific Coast shortstopping flash, coming up.

Likewise, Frisch is carded to shift partly because of the arrival of a rookie. Carey Selph, who hit .312 and fielded .971 for Houston of the Texas League, is bidding for Frankie's old job at second and he needs only to make good to clinch the transfer of the Fordham Flash to the position that has long bothered the Red Birds. Frankie, a natural fielder, can hit regardless of his playing position. His life time major league average of .321 proves that.

Cleveland decided last year that Joe Sewell was the man to do the third basing for that club. Joe took a whirl at the job late last season and while turning in a fielding average of .943, he fell only one point below that of Johnny Hodapp, the Indians' regular at third. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh obtained Jackie Tavener from Detroit to handle Joe's place at short, so the agile Alabaman takes his steel arm and keen batting eye to the region where line drives come fast and bunts come slow.

And if Little Joe can master the fielding he won't rank below many third sackers in hitting, for he has a lifetime major league average of .322.

Champion Tommy Meets Champion Mickey



Chicago's new $7,000,000 indoor stadium will be dedicated, March 28, with a 10-round title bout between Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion.

WITH THE BALL CLUBS

(By The Associated Press)

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The system that carried the New York Yankees to three consecutive American League pennants will be in vogue again this season, says Manager Miller Huggins. He plans to depend solely on his veterans until July 4. Then if his club has opened up a lead of from five to ten games he will begin experimenting with his youngsters.

If the Yankees aren't leading by a good margin on Independence Day he expects to stick by his veterans all season.

San Antonio—By his own request, Ed Roush, veteran outfielder, has been assigned to the second string team of the New York Giants during the remainder of the spring training campaign. Roush had been informed he would not be in the starting lineup when the first string Giant team plays its coming exhibition games. So the highest paid outfielder in the National League—$23,000 a season—decided that he'd rather join the rookies where he will be in the lineup every day, taking his cut at the ball. Eddie thinks he can win back his centerfield job by the time the regular season rolls around.

Fort Myers, Fla.—The Athletics are falling into a habit of last year—that of winning games by a last inning spurt. Yesterday they scored nine tallies in the tenth to defeat the Montreal Internationals, 27 to 18.

San Francisco—A new card, bearing the information L. Waner, "cf" is painted and ready for insertion on the scoreboard when the Pittsburgh Pirates resume exhibition activities today. Manager Donie Bush was so elated over Waner's arrival yesterday that he decided to use "Little Poison" today even if for only a few minutes.

Tampa, Fla.—Confidence is permeating the Florida training camp of the Washington Nationals as it has not in years. President Clark Griffith has joined Manager Johnson in predicting a first division berth for the club. The consensus is that the club is well fortified in all departments.

Dallas, Texas—Young Ed Walsh, of the White Sox, appears ready for the championship campaign.

Walsh pitched six innings against the Dallas Steers yesterday and held them to three hits. The Sox took the game, 5 to 5.

Los Angeles—Because of sheer hitting power the Cubs have won three straight exhibition games from the Detroit Tigers. The Cubs defeated the Tigers, 13 to 8, yesterday. Kiki Cuyler led the attack with a homer and triple.

New Orleans—Pitchers are scarce around the camp of the Cleveland Indians, and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh is taking no chances with those he has.

At practice sessions the twirlers made their throws protected by a net which comes well above their knees, to protect their shins against hot grounders. The net is about five feet long, and is stretched tight between two stakes driven on either side of the box.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The first of three Red Sox vs. Braves training season encounters was won by the Red Sox yesterday, 7-2, largely through a fatal fourth inning during which one hit, four errors and two bases on balls off Ed Brandt gave Carrigan's men five runs.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Followers of the Phillies are about ready to believe the old saying that it takes a rook to snare a robin. Anyway, four Phillie rookie pitchers beat the Brooklyn Robins yesterday, 9 to 4, for the second straight victory. The rookies were Walker, Holloway, Derham and Fine.

New York—Jimmy McLarnin, Detroit, outpointed Ray Miller, Chicago (10). Joey La Gray, New York, stopped Freddie Polo, Newark, N. J. (7). Sammy Dorfman, New York, outpointed Dominic Petrone, New York (10).

Omaha—Tommy Grogan, Omaha, knocked out Russie Leroy, Fargo, N. D. (7). George Manley, Denver, knocked out Bud Doran, Cincinnati (7).

Milwaukee—Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo, Mich., outpointed Solly Seamand, New York (8). Henry Perlick, Kalamazoo, outpointed Irwin Berndt, Milwaukee (8).

Boston—Ernie Schaaf, Boston, outpointed Al Friedman, Boston (10). Kid Chocolate, Cuba, stopped Johnnie Vacca, Boston (9).

New Orleans—Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, outpointed Farmer Joe Cooper, Terre Haute, Ind. (10).

Hot Springs, Ark.—Roger Barnard, Detroit, knocked out Chicho Cisneros, Mexico (8).

Des Moines—Joey Phelan, Omaha, stopped Teddy Cartin, Lincoln (6). Johnny Mack, Cincinnati, outpointed Pat Keener, Oklahoma (10).

Carpenter Goes With Albany Team

Johnny Carpenter, a mainstay of the Pan-Am Club pitching staff last year, will travel in faster company during the coming season, it is predicted, for he is to try out for a berth on the Albany State League team in the near future.

Carpenter has been ordered to leave with the Albany team for South Carolina on Monday, where his brand will be looked over. Johnny will also be taught some new tricks of the national sport, which added to his natural ability to pitch, will enable him to make good with the capital city team, it is expected.

This Kingston pitcher has plenty of boosters among the Pan-Am players, who expect to start the coming season in whirlwind fashion and end up in the same style. The first organization meeting of the year will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m., at the Pan-Am station on the Saugerties road.

All players who expect to play with the Pan-Ams this coming season are requested to be on hand promptly. Besides talking plans over for getting the season under way, officers of the Pan-Am Club will be elected.

No Two-Team Race In American This Season

Atlanta, Ga., March 23 (AP).—If early star gazers have read correctly signs in the American League baseball sky there will be no two-team race this season. In 1928 the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics thundered to the wire neck and neck, the Yankees finally nosing out the A's. The St. Louis Browns, in third place, were sixteen games back.

As the new season approaches it may be found that the Yankees and Athletics have shown less improvement than the other six clubs in the circuit. On their performance last year they were well able to leave well enough alone, but the opposition seems to have taken up the challenge in earnest.

Of the four second division clubs in 1928, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Boston, the Detroit Tigers, under new management and partially renovated, seem to furnish the most serious threat to the teams higher up.

Lyn Larry, the high-priced new shortstop of the Yankees, has found himself at home and Mark Koenig doubtless will do well enough at third base. Tony Lazzeri's arm remains something of a question mark but his hitting power has not been lessened. With Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig able to swing their big bats, most of the experts agree that little or nothing can be done about the penant chase without consulting Manager Miller Huggins. Herb Pennock probably will pitch some good ball games and at least one new pitcher should be ready.

Connie Mack has stood pat on the personnel of the Athletics but has rearranged the infield. Jimmy Fox, the hard hitting catcher, third baseman and first baseman, will be the regular first sacker. Jimmy Dykes, who literally can play anywhere, is the leading third base candidate. The A's infield under the new arrangement may prove to be stronger. Manager Mack has only one extra outfielder of experience, Homer Summa, late of Cleveland, and will need at least one more. An already strong pitching staff has been made stronger by recruits, but the starting moundsmen will remain the same.

Stanley Harris, making his bow to Detroit fans as manager of the home team, seems to have a great chance to move the Tigers up from their sixth place position of last year. Roy Johnson, the Pacific coast recruit, should help an outfield that was fair before. George Uhle, former star Cleveland pitcher, may carry the club's destiny with him. If he has a good year the clever "Bucky" Harris will be happy. Other questions for the manager may be how well Dale Alexander will field and will Schuble carry on at short. The big first baseman's hitting is not in dispute.

The St. Louis Browns, who hustled themselves into third place last season, have retained their fighting spirit. A clever fielder has been added to the infield in the person of third baseman Eddie Grimes and another recruit infielder, Leonard Dondero, may be heard from. "Rip" Collins, a pitcher who "has everything" according to the other players, should win some games. Some of the St. Louis pitchers will have greater responsibilities for Manager Dan Howley can not reasonably complain if Alvin Crowder and Sam Gray fall short of their 1928 performances.

Washington's Senators will be built about the personality of the beloved Walter Johnson, who has his chance as a major league manager after a brief apprenticeship at Newark. "Barney" would like to have another pitcher or two and he may have trouble in filling Bucky Harris' second-base shoes. Buddy Myer at third base and Ossie Bluege, transferred to shortstop, form a combination setting his mind at rest on that side of the infield. Adolph Liska and Archie Campbell, a former Yankee, have shown promise and if they convince him that they can win now and then, Manager Johnson will feel much better.

Cleveland will offer an outfit largely made over from 1928 with the exception of the battery forces. The Indians may have the satisfaction of breaking in two recruit outfielders able to make the grade in Dick Porter and Earl Averill, and Bib Falk, long a Chicago White Sox, will be a valuable man for Manager Pickinpaugh. Jackie Tavener has fitted into the Cleveland machine at shortstop and Joe Sewell will play good ball at third base. Jim Zinn, a clever minor league pitcher, will have another chance under the big top.

The Chicago White Sox will depend on the fat young men who joined the team last autumn to keep them in the running with the exception of Johnny Kerr, drafted from Hollywood, at second base. Long without a capable southpaw pitcher, Manager Lena Blackburne hopes this shortage has been met by the arrival of Bob Weiland from Moline. Dan Dugan, a collegian, may be along later.

Some time must elapse before Manager Bill Carrigan will know how good his latest cast of the Boston Red Sox is to be. He has seen enough to convince him that it is a stronger combination than last year. Bob Reeves, former Washington infielder, is one of the most promising of his big lot of players, but the collegian is not alone. The Sox will have many new faces.

TROJANS OUTSCORE TRIANGLE QUINTET.

The Trojan A. C. defeated the Triangles, 41-18, at Salvation Hall Friday night. The losers played a snappy game in the first quarter but could not keep up the stride. Johnson, with 20 points, did the main scoring for the winners, while J. Dann tallied eight points for the losers.

Tonight the Trojans and Shamrocks will meet on Epworth Hall court at 7:30 o'clock.

The score:

McLarnin Wins Very Dull Bout

New York, March 23 (AP).—The boys who pay "the freight" may be expected to view with ill-concealed amusement any future pugilistic encounter between well-advertised sluggers.

Having understood that Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller could hit with the power of a stick of dynamite, 21,000 of the fistic faithful trustfully paid $111,556 to see McLarnin outpoint the blonde Chicagoan last night in as dull a ten-round bout as Madison Square Garden has seen in recent months.

Miller, possibly best of the lightweight left hook punchers in the business, stopped McLarnin in a sensational and bloody scrap at Detroit some months ago. Despite that fact there was almost unprecedented interest in their return meeting.

The crowd came to cheer a slugging bee; they remained to boo a none-too-good boxing exhibition, marked by as many clinches as there were in any of the heavyweight eliminations of a year or so ago.

Jimmy, the Van Couver Irishman, and Miller, the Chicago blonde, had developed such a healthy respect for one another's socking ability that each felt uneasy unless the fighting was a close quarters where a clean punch is next to impossible.

For six rounds they waged a safe-and-sane exhibition that had the capacity house jeering almost continually. Clinch followed clinch. The only damage was to the fans' expectations.

As they went into the seventh round, McLarnin shifted his attack to Miller's body and then caught the blonde with a right to the chin that dazed him. After that it was all clear sailing for McLarnin. He had regained some measure of his usual confidence and he cuffed Miller about the ring until the finish.

In justice to the Chicagoan it might be pointed out that he conceded too many pounds to the husky Irishman and tired badly toward the finish. Scaling 133½ he was almost five pounds lighter than McLarnin, who weighed 138¾.

There was little, if any, disagreement with the official decision. The Associated Press score card gave McLarnin eight rounds and Miller two, the first and the fourth.

FINALS IN EASTERN STATES BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 23 (AP).—Schenectady High School of Schenectady, N. Y., or St. Mary's High School of Westfield, Mass., will be the new champion of the Eastern States basketball tournament after tonight's final game.

Schenectady outplayed Emerson Institute of Washington, D. C., last night to win by the score of 24-18. St. Mary's won by a single point over the Hun Preparatory School of Princeton, N. J. The score for the game was 17-16.

York High School of York, Pa., which won the championship last year, was eliminated on the opening night of the tournament by the Hun School, 26-25.

Hun and Emerson will play for the consolation trophy before the Schenectady-St. Mary's championship go. The championship game will be broadcast through station WGY of Schenectady.

Starts Tomorrow B'way Theatre. Was it robbery? Fear? Revenge? What caused the sensational crime. "The Canary Murder Case?" See the picture made from S. S. Van Dine's best-selling novel.

Addition to High School Necessary

attention given to students of the night school is somewhat different from the day school. Every student is a problem, therefore our work is mostly individual. We aim to provide the fundamentals of an education for those persons who have been deprived of school advantage in their youth, to help those who need help in the trades and industries, to help those who wish to become more efficient workers, to give another chance to the boys and girls who for various reasons did not do the regular school work, and especially to give to the people born in other countries a chance to learn to read and write English and also to prepare for naturalization and citizenship.

The professional requirements for the teachers are regulated by the Education Department at Albany. Great care has been taken in the selection of the teachers for the night school. Every teacher is a man or woman either at the head of a grammar school or the head of a department in the high school. So far as possible, teachers are selected who have had experience, that fits them for understanding the problems that are likely to arise because of the wide range of age and the educational desires incident to the many sided purposes of this kind of a school.

The teachers of Americanization are grammar school principals qualified by long experience to teach adult foreigners to read and write English, and also to help them to become good citizens of the United States. These potential citizens are taught the fundamental principles of government in city, state and nation, and are shown how to fit themselves into the life of the community in which they live.

The commercial classes are arranged to meet the needs of all from the student who knows nothing of this kind of work to the student who has had commercial work in the day school. Thus again the problem is individual and the individual instruction is provided where necessary. The teachers for this department are from the high school.

The industrial work is another strong department of the night school; perhaps not so strong in numbers but in the work accomplished by the students who are attracted to the school to receive this kind of instruction.

The night school is doing a good work. It has the confidence of the citizens of Kingston. The results cannot be measured in a day, a week or a month, but in the years to come here and there in this city a man or a woman will be more efficient and a little better citizen because of his or her contact with the Kingston night school.

Respectfully,
FRANK L. MEAGHER,
Principal Night School.
Respectfully submitted,
M. J. MICHAEL,
Superintendent of Schools.
Kingston, N. Y., March 22, 1929.

Alligerville Dance.

The regular Saturday night dance will be held at K. of P. Hall, Alligerville, tonight. Maisenhelder's orchestra will furnish music.

Field Mice

A good word might be said for field mice, usually set down categorically as "vermin," if the store of seeds recently taken from a mouse's nest in a mound building in Yellowstone park can be taken as a fair sample. The cache of this tiny creature filled a five-pound lard pail. The seeds were all of the fanweed, one of the worst plant pests in Montana.

Superintendent Of State Banks

Albany, March 23 (AP).—Joseph A. Broderick of New York today was appointed state superintendent of banks by Governor Roosevelt, the appointment being sent to the senate for confirmation.

Mr. Broderick would succeed Frank T. Warder, appointed in January, 1926, whose term expires July 1.

BOROTRA EXPECTED TO DEFEAT HUNTER

New York, March 23 (AP).—Once more it is France against the United States for one of America's major tennis titles and France, as usual, is the favorite.

Jean Borotra, France's only representative in the national indoor championships, is expected to come through to his third title today against sturdy Frank Hunter, who will oppose him in the final.

Borotra yesterday had a one-sided contest with last year's surprise champion, William Aydelotte. The Basque sped and smashed his way to triumph over the hard-driving young New Yorker, who knows the courts and the tricky lighting of the huge Seventh Regiment armory as few players do.

Hunter advanced to the final by defeating Julius Seligson, steady Lehigh star, in straight sets.

In the doubles, Borotra is less of a favorite. Paired with Watson M. Washburn, veteran of American Davis cup teams several years ago, he will meet Hunter and Big Bill Tilden, leading doubles team of the present.

LINTON'S REVUE AT HIGH FALLS, APRIL 3

A revue and masquerade will be held at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, on Wednesday evening, April 3, under the direction of Harry Linton of this city. The event is expected to bring out a record crowd for one of the best times ever held in the hall.

The revue will consist of 25 people, all students at the Linton dancing school in this city. Mr. Linton, a veteran at the theatrical business, says that he will have plenty of pleasing novelties to offer in the revue. Rehearsals are now under way.

Following the revue there will be a masquerade dance. Harry Maisenhelder of this city will direct an eight piece orchestra, which he promises will furnish music that will suit the tastes of all.

HOWLAND AND KOJAC QUALIFY IN SWIMMING

Princeton, N. J., March 23 (AP).—Johnny Howland, star of the Yale swimming team, and George Kojac of Rutgers, a member of the Olympic team, have shown the way to the college watermen gathered for the Intercollegiate swimming championships. In the preliminary races yesterday, Howland qualified for the finals in three events at 50, 100 and 220 yards; Kojac qualified for his specialty, the 150-yard backstroke, and the 440-yard swim.

Yale and Rutgers led in the number of men who survived the preliminaries. The Elis have eight in today's finals and Rutgers seven.

The Model Weakened

A man died the other day, and the neighbors said his wife hen-pecked him to death. She was always displaying him as a product of her management, and, as she didn't manage well, he couldn't stand the pace.—H. W. Howe's Monthly.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

A Stylish Afternoon Frock For the Large Woman

The pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 46 inch size will require 4¾ yards of 39 inch material. For facing of contrasting on the cuffs ⅛ yard 40 inches wide is required, also 1⅝ yard of lining 36 inches wide for the underbody. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 60 inches.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Land on Their Feet

All animals naturally have the impulse to land on their feet when falling. Since cats are more agile than other animals, if they are not too close to the floor when falling, they are more successful in landing on their feet.
